SOME GREAT PRODUCTIONS.

Prominent Men Who Have Sprung From Livingston County.

Salem, Ky., Oct. 28th 1895.

ED. PRESS:—The Press has been a weekly visitor to my home from its birth to the present time, and my love for it has become stronger, and stronger as each week we meet. I am proud of the stand it has so ably, and justly taken on the silver question. For quite a while I tried to contribute a small article to the Press, but the Press has been so busy with its own affairs, and as a writer, I would have to return once more to the home of the Press, and to write of some of the men of old Livingston county, whom we are proud of. We have to talk of men who have grown to fame, and for them, who were born, and raised in our own country. It would take up too much space in your paper to give an account or short history of all the men who have become very wealthy, or become prominent in politics were once citizens of Livingston county. Some have made great lawyers, some great doctors, I will mention some now and later on the others. There is Harrison Martin, born on a farm in this county, and many years ago while yet a young man he went to Texas with barely enough money to get him there, and began the battle of life. His education was limited, but he had plenty of lay-horse sense, and energy, grit and determination unlimited. He wore out every obstacle that came in his way and not only grew wealthy, but became one of the most prominent men in the political affairs of the State of Texas.

John Bass, was born in old Salem, the dearest, and best town in the State of Kentucky. No boy in all of old Livingston county, had a harder row to live, than honest John Bass, but he held it well, and this was his motto "When you do any thing, do it well." When he left Kentucky he said he was going off to make his fortune, he moved to Indiana and is now one of the wealthiest men in that State, being worth millions of dollars.

James Alcorn, was born in Salem, and was once Sheriff of this county, moved to Mississippi, represented that State in Congress, and was elected its Governor.

Judge Kingman, for many years engaged in the practice of law, in Smithland, moved to Kansas, a very poor man, Kansas was a young State at that time and he had to endure many hardships, and privations, but he stuck to his text, and succeeded in going to the head of his profession, and has held many offices of honor in that State, for many years he was one of the judges of the court of Appeals. Mr. Kingman never cared any thing for money, and of course did not get rich. He has always been a great lover of books and has read every thing he could lay his eyes on. He has spent nearly every dollar he made for books, and if he has no money on hand he will buy books on a credit. It matters not where you see Kingman, you will find him reading a book, if there is any credit in being called a book-worm, Kingman is entitled to it.

Roger Q. Mill, of Texas, another Livingston county boy, needs nothing from my pen, as every man who reads the political news of the day, well acquainted with him and his great success in life. As a Livingston county man, I wish him continued success, and happiness to his journey's end.

W. D. Greer, was born on a farm near Salem, and went through all the hard ships of the average boy on a farm; with him it was work and chore, and work from early dawn to dusky night. Dave became weary of this and began to think how to better his condition in life. His only opportunity for school was during the winter months and he made good use of his time, having obtained a good education, he concluded to read law, and bent his energies in that direction he received his license to practice law, and by hard work and close application to his business soon rose to the head of the profession in Smithland. Many years ago he moved to Paducah

Ky. and to day has the largest practice of any lawyer in that city, and his reputation as a lawyer is not confined to the limits of this State. He was in co-partnership in the practice of law with Judge Kingman, many years ago, but he differs from Kingman in this he loves money, as well as books, and has provided well for the rainy day. Every lawyer who has a personal acquaintance with Dave Greer, will admit that he is the hardest working lawyer in this part of the State. He does not know what it is to rest, he works, and works, on his cases day and night, there seems to be no limit to his energy and determination, and that is the key to his success.

But we have one still with us greater than them all who towers above them in intellect, like the giant oak towers above the persimmon bush. He was not born in this county, but came to us when a young man, without a dollar in the world, but he came with principles of honor planted in his bosom as firmly as the everlasting hills. He was as poor as Lazarus, but his ambition to become a man loved, respected, and honored by his people, was as great as that of Napoleon, his brain power as great as that of Daniel Webster. I can see him now when he first began the study of law in Smithland, he looked green, and awkward, his clothes were worn thread-bare, almost ragged. He had to board here, and there about town on a credit, while reading law. The birds of the air had nest, and the foxes had holes but this man, had not where to lay his head, had not been for credit. And I thank God now, for placing on the face of every man that something by which other men can look him in the face and tell whether to give him credit or not, for were it not for this, many a "great diamond in the rough would have to go forever, unpolished and unknown. Soon after this young man began the practice of law he formed a partnership with Hon. J. W. Bush, one of the best lawyers in the State of Kentucky, and who has done more towards helping, and encouraging young lawyers on to success than any man that ever lived in this county. From that time on he went rapidly to the front, he redeemed every pledge he made, and paid ever debt he contracted. Some years afterwards he was elected county attorney, and was re-elected to said office, while in that office he was a perfect terror to evil doers, law breakers, become obedient law abiding citizens, and peace and good order prevailed through out the county. Then he went on higher, and was elected State Senator, and while in Senate, made a national reputation, for every where people have read of the man, called honest Dick Tate, who proved to be a defaulter, and coupled with his name in every paper that gave an account of the affair, it honest John K. Hendrick, who detected Tate in his rascality, and drove him from the State. After that he was elected to the Congress of the United States, defeating the Hon. W. J. Stone, by a larger majority than any man defeated his opponent in the race for Congress in the United States, at the last election. Now mark my word, and watch his record in the next Congress, and see if he don't make the best Congressman we have had since the day's of Linn Boyd. I never knew John K. Hendrick to be wrong on any important question but one, and in that he is wrong, as certain as God made man. He is opposed to the free, and unlimited coinage of silver, and in that he is wrong. Free Silver.

ESCAPED UNDER FIRE.

Alleged Barn-burner Etuded Two Armed Officers.

Uniontown, Ky., Oct. 28.—Deputy Marshals Brashear and Davidson went to John Crowman's, five miles from here, to-day, to arrest Samuel Slinger, who is wanted in Crittenden county for barn-burning and carrying concealed weapons. On seeing the approach of the Marshals, Slinger fled to a cornfield near by. Davidson went in one direction and Brashear another, intending to surround him. Brashear got within short distance of Slinger and hallooed "halt." Slinger stopped and made an effort to get a weapon of some kind, and Brashear turned a load of No. 4 shot into his body, but did not cripple him, and he made his escape, after being shot at four times. Brashear says he knows he hit him from his actions.

The Sixth Auditor.

Washington, D. C. Oct. 30.—Every business transaction of the government involving the payment of money, from the millions appropriated for pensions and war ships, down to the smallest money order, has to be passed upon by officials of the Treasury Department before the matter is finally settled. To audit this enormous number of bills, involving several hundred millions of dollars each year, the Treasury Department is provided with six divisions of accountants, each having its own branch of the public service to look after.

The Sixth Auditor, now officially known as "The Auditor for the Post Office Department," requires from 450 to 500 assistants to keep track of the business of that branch of the service alone. When the quantity of business done each year is understood it will be seen that these officials find plenty of work to do to "earn their salt."

When the present auditor, Mr. George A. Howard, assumed the duties of his office, he found himself confronted with an accumulation of thirty-five millions of paid money orders, which had to be first sorted by the paying offices and compared with reports of postmasters who paid the orders, and then rechecked by the issuing offices and compared with the reports sent in by the postmasters who issued the orders.

After the accounts are settled the orders are tied up in bundles and kept for at least ten years. Two hundred and twenty-four tons of orders issued between 1864 and 1884 have just been sold as waste paper, realizing the government $1,650.

As the result of the investigation of the "Docket" Congressional committee into the mode of conducting the work of the governments, a number of changes have been made in the Sixth Auditor's office. The old postal notes have been done away with, and a new money order has been issued with requires but a single checking and that against the paying office. When a postmaster sends in the orders paid during the week, he sends a list of them also. If the returned orders tally with the list the account is closed and that is the end of the transaction.

For the use of postmasters the orders are bound up in book form. Between the order and the stub are a series of coupons representing dollars and cents. The order is torn off in such a way that the coupons attached to it will represent the amount for which the order is drawn. The stubs are sent in with the reports of the issuing postmaster and if the coupons missing from the stub correspond with the amount given on the list his account also is balanced. This plan, borrowed from the United States Express Company, saves a vast amount of work, and reduces the number of people employed in the old "sorting division" by nearly a hundred. The domestic money order system includes over 20,000 post offices, and handles each year from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000.

Another branch of the auditor's office, the "Foreign Money Order Division," looks after the foreign exchange, for in the principle post offices of the country you can now purchase a money order upon almost any civilized country except Russia, Mexico and the South American Republics. These countries do not even have domestic systems. When a postmaster is asked for a foreign order he gives the applicant a receipt for the sum, and he draws an order upon New York if the money is to be paid in Europe, or upon San Francisco if it is to be paid in Asia. The New York or San Francisco office will send a copy of the order to the exchange office in the proper country and in that country the nearest postmaster will be directed to pay the money to the person for whom it is intended. In many countries, as in Germany, it is taken directly to the house of the party. There is no order given to be mailed by the purchaser directly to the payee, as is the case with domestic orders.

For the Canadian business there are six exchange offices, extending from Bangor to Seattle, and orders are drawn upon the nearest exchange office. The force auditing the domestic accounts requires some three hundred clerks, while a baker's dozen finds no difficulty in keeping up with the foreign business.

The "Pay Division" audits the accounts of all classes of mail transportation expenses, amounting to upwards of $40,000,000 annually. The divisions referred to are the most important ones in the Sixth Auditor's Office. There are several minor divisions, each having its own particular line of work. The whole represents a wonderfully effective yet simple plan for regulating the postal system of the country.

All Smoke.

The Louisville Times says:

Judge W. H. Gardner, the State Inspector and examiner, is in the city to-day, en route to spend Sunday at his home at Elizabethtown. He was appointed by Gov. Brown four years ago, and his duty is to examine closely the Auditor's office, as well as all other public offices in Kentucky.

A reporter for the Times sought Judge Gardner and asked what there was in the charges made against the Auditor's office, in which it is alleged there is mismanagement and a necessity for making a change in order that the books may be opened to the public.

The reply was as follows: "The business methods of the Auditor's office are too well known to require a denial of such charges. They are unworthy of notice and are manufactured and circulated for campaign purposes only. The records of this office have not been closed to the public, to my personal knowledge since I have been Inspector, and if a change should be made, which I do not think the people have any idea of making, take my word for it, the Republicans will not find a crookedness or a fraud in that office."

"How do you know this, Judge, in view of the fact that a difference is known to exist between the Governor and Auditor, and it is supposed by some that access to the Auditor's books would be denied you."

"That is a mistaken notion entirely," said the Judge. "A variance does exist, but that has not prevented me from performing my duty, nor the Auditor from affording me full opportunity to do it. Not only has the Auditor not refused me access to the books of his office, but I have had at all times the prompt and ready assistance of any or all the clerks of his office. I can truthfully say that no public office in Kentucky has been more thoroughly overhauled and rigidly examined in detail in every department than this one, reaching back beyond the entire time of Maj. Norman. In fact, I have devoted about one-half of my time since April, 1892, when I was appointed Inspector by Gov. Brown, to an examination of this office, and though I have had various and numerous outside as well as inside official records from which to check against the Auditor's office, I have not discovered a single instance or item in which the State has been defrauded out of a cent."

"As it has been my unvarying rule to shield no guilty man, Democrat or Republican, you may rest assured if any fraud had been discovered by me in this office I would promptly have reported it to the Governor. In addition to the test of honesty which I applied to this office in the matter of public money received by it and paid over to the Treasurer, I can further say its leading features under the splendid system maintained by Auditor Norman are neatness, courtesy, efficiency, accuracy and a painstaking care to guard the interest of the State, and to properly discharge every duty incumbent upon the office, with his superior corps of clerks, his office could not be otherwise than in a first-class and honestly conducted."

Sound Advice to Democrats.

"To me it is quite clear that the sound money men should keep in touch with all the members of the Democratic party. By doing so we may bring the united Democracy of the State to the support of sound money candidate for the Presidency 1896. It would be fatal to the cause in Kentucky to array the Democratic people in two hostile factions. The path of safety lies in keeping together and in electing our State ticket. When that is done we can take up the work of preparing for the national campaign of 1896, and can work together through a compact Democratic organization."—Senator Lindsay.

CHAT'S PERIL.

A Story of Panther Hollow.

"Maccany thing! I'm glad 'tis gone." Mused Chat, as he gave a strange look at the old, weathered, and rusty, and he seemed to be in a daze. "Oh, me, will daylight ever come? Or shall I live to see the way from out this horrid place, be rescued from the tree?"

"If I should ever reach home again, I'll have a good rule; I'll never ride another beast, except Dock Driver's mule, 'What care I if he did fall down, and roll me in the gully? I gained the object of my heart, now compensated fully."

"What matters it, compared to this, if I should chance to roll down from his back, and go ker-splash in that old swimming hole?"

"What would it be, compared to this? Although 'twould be a slam—Should Dock's mule turn a summer-sault, and plunge me o'er the dam?"

"Yes, Driver's is the mule for me; I'll keep him too, for life; For if I'd been upon his back, I'd now have had a wife."

"It makes me sick to think of it; My grief I can not hide; Instead of being among the spooks, I'd have a lovely bride."

"I'm tired, ay, worn out, sitting here; 'Tis not a pleasant seat. This limb's not cushion'd suitably—This I need not repeat."

CHAPTER XX.

POOR LAURA.

The poets, painters, sages, bards Have always chose to dwell Upon the heav'n-born theme of love, And of its beauties tell.

When Adam first beheld the form Of Eve, that she was fair, And she, in turn smiled back at him; 'Twas settled, then, and there.

And so it is, and so 'twill be—For love of bliss above—The one great conqueror of hearts—The mystic power of love.

Though pessimists may ridicule; Old bachelors may frown; And maidens of uncertain age, May doubt—but 'twill not down.

In a recent letter to the manufacturers Mr. W. F. Benjamin, editor of the Spectator, Rushford, N. Y., says: "It may be a pleasure to you to know the high esteem in which Chamberlain's medicines are held by the people of your own State, where they must be best known. An aunt of mine, who resides at Dexter, Iowa, was about to visit me a few years ago, and before leaving home wrote me, asking if they were sold here, stating if they were not she would bring a quantity with her, as she did not like to be without them." The medicines referred to are Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cure of coughs and colds, Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism, lame back, pains in the side and chest, and Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy for bowel complaints. These medicines have been in constant use in Iowa for almost a quarter of a century. The people have learned that they are articles of great worth and merit, and unequaled by any other, are for sale here by Orme Bros.

The "Bookkeeping Division" requires about seventy-five accountants. All of them are men, because of the great weight of the enormous ledgers in which are kept personal accounts with every postmaster in the United States.

The "Pay Division" audits the accounts of all classes of mail transportation expenses, amounting to upwards of $40,000,000 annually.

The divisions referred to are the most important ones in the Sixth Auditor's Office. There are several minor divisions, each having its own particular line of work. The whole represents a wonderfully effective yet simple plan for regulating the postal system of the country.

Brown, to an examination of this office, and though I have had various and numerous outside as well as inside official records from which to check against the Auditor's office, I have not discovered a single instance or item in which the State has been defrauded out of a cent."

"As it has been my unvarying rule to shield no guilty man, Democrat or Republican, you may rest assured if any fraud had been discovered by me in this office I would promptly have reported it to the Governor. In addition to the test of honesty which I applied to this office in the matter of public money received by it and paid over to the Treasurer, I can further say its leading features under the splendid system maintained by Auditor Norman are neatness, courtesy, efficiency, accuracy and a painstaking care to guard the interest of the State, and to properly discharge every duty incumbent upon the office, with his superior corps of clerks, his office could not be otherwise than in a first-class and honestly conducted."

Sound Advice to Democrats.

"To me it is quite clear that the sound money men should keep in touch with all the members of the Democratic party. By doing so we may bring the united Democracy of the State to the support of sound money candidate for the Presidency 1896. It would be fatal to the cause in Kentucky to array the Democratic people in two hostile factions. The path of safety lies in keeping together and in electing our State ticket. When that is done we can take up the work of preparing for the national campaign of 1896, and can work together through a compact Democratic organization."—Senator Lindsay.

The family of the governor will take up their quarters in Louisville, Dec. 11.

CHAT'S PERIL.

A Story of Panther Hollow.

"Unhappy thing! I'm glad 'tis gone," Maud Chat, "It is very strange; And shoot or not, whatever it is, I don't want it in my range."

"Oh, he, will daylight ever come? Or shall I live to see the guile? I gained the object of my heart, As rescued from the tree?"

"I should never reach home again, I'll lay down this good rule; I'll never ride another beast, Except Duck Driver's mule."

"What care I if he did fall down, And roll me in the guile? I gained the object of my heart, Now compensated fully."

"What matters it, compared to this, If I should chance to roll Down from his back, and go ker-splash In that old swimming hole?"

"What would it be, compared to this— Although 'twould be a shame— Should Duck's mule turn a summer-sault, And plunge me o'er the dam?"

"Yes, Drivers is the mule for me; I'll keep him too, for life; But if I been upon his back I'd now have had a wife."

"It makes me sick to think of it; My grief I can not hide; Instead of being among the spoils, I'd have a lovely bride."

"I'm tired, ay, worn out, sitting here; 'Tis not a pleasant seat, This lumpy old cushion'd suitably— This I need not repeat."

The hours passed slowly, slowly by, Chat welcomed too the sight Low in the east faint streaks of red, The coming of daylight.

The wolves were still around the tree; Sometimes they'd give a yelp, Then look up eagerly at Chat, As though they wished for help.

But suddenly they seemed dismayed— The change, too, Chat had seen— And scampered off in great affright, And fear toward Wolf Ravine.

He had not long to wait to learn The cause of their affright; It filled his heart too, with despair, For 'twas a fearful sight.

A savage beast came rushing up— A panther—Chat could see It paused, looked up, and then Began to climb the tree.

CHAPTER XX.

POOR LAURA.

The poets, painters, sages, bards Have always chose to dwell Upon the heart's-born theme of love, And of its beauties tell.

When Adam first beheld the form Of Eve, that she was fair, And he, in turn smiled back at him; 'Twas settled, then and there.

And so it is, and so 'twill be— Foretaste of bliss above— The one great conqueror of hearts— The mystic power of love.

Though pessimists may ridicule; Old bachelors may frown; And maidens of uncertain age May doubt— but 'twill not down.

And just so long as man shall live; So long as love shall last, The cord of love, unbreakable, Will bind hearts firm and fast.

The secret of all happiness; The banisher of care; Unswerving in its fervency— It comes but once in life.

A wretch is he who but deceives— Who falsely acts his part! The same is she whose fickle heart Rends some fond, and manly heart!

As Laura, pale, yet beautiful, Sat, pondering o'er an anxiety, A sympathizing neighbor came And rapped up on the door.

The night had passed and morning dawned; 'Twas Wednesday now no more; The business world's rush, push and stir, Went on, just as before.

With those of whom we have to write, How'er 'twix different; Work seem'd suspended, business stopp'd— Postpon'd, with one consent.

"Good morning, Northerly," Laura said; He bowed and raised his hat— "How are you, Laura," he replied; "Heard any news from Chat?"

"No, Mr. Northerly," she replied; "No news yet—not a word."

"Well, Laura," Northerly then returned, "I'll tell you what I've heard."

"Oh, have you any news from Chat? Oh, tell it—do!" she said; "Say did he fall among the wolves? Is he alive or—dead?"

Poor Laura scarce could speak the word Overcome by her fears, She bowed her head upon her hands, And sought relief in tears.

"Alive, I s'pose, Northerly replied— His voice would somewhat quiver— "For he, last night at ten o'clock, Was seen to cross the river."

"A gentleman who lives down there," Northerly went on, "says that A man and woman went across— He swears the man was Chat."

"I don't believe a word of it!" Cried Laura—"tell you that! What! Run off with another girl? I know it was not Chat!"

"And why did you come here, Northerly To bring such news as that? The fellow—'tis not his nature sir— 'Twas not my poor, lost Chat!"

Her eyes were sparkling as she closed: She rose, picked up a broom, And Northerly, taking to his heels, Went flying from the room!

As Northerly passed on by the gate— He stepped out very slyly Another man came walking in; This time 'twas Mr. Riley.

"Good morning, Northerly; how d'you do?" Northerly responded dryly, "I am not well at all, thank you— How is it with you, Riley?"

"Somewhat that way with me, Northerly," said Riley; "for I sat Up all last night—I could not sleep— Was so concerned for Chat."

"I greatly fear," Riley went on— "Would not tell Laura this, He's either got in Wolf Ravine, Or else in Spooks Precipice."

Then Mr. Riley went on in, And stepped upon the floor, And, with his left hand fist, he gave A rap upon the door.

"Good morning Laura—looking well. I'm just from Brother Riley; For we are both greatly concerned For Chat," said Mr. Riley.

"You need not fear," Riley went on In earnest tones, "for Chat; I think he'll come out safe enough, I came to tell you that."

"'Tis true the Hollow's dangerous; All this of course you know; In portions of it no one man, Though brave, would care to go."

"Last night, you know, was very dark; Suspect he lost the route, As many other men have done, And could not make it out."

"As soon as day would dawn, you know, And he could see to follow The road that leads from Bears Retreat, He'd soon leave Panther Hollow."

"Thanks for your kindness," Laura said, "Esteem it very highly; I fear tho' it is worse than that— Ay, far worse, Mr. Riley."

"Of course we don't know," he returned, "Chat may have gone between Hogboblin Cave and Specter's Roost, And into Wolf Ravine."

"And yet, he may get safely out," Still went on Mr. Riley, "I believe that things are foreordained, And so does Brother Riley."

"Suppose he does fall in with wolves, Wildcats and panthers too? The One who saved Shadrach of old, Can bring Chat safely through."

Riley was interrupted here; For, tripping like a fairy, A sweet young girl came to the door, And lightly tapped, 'Twas Carrie, And into Wolf Ravine.

"I'm glad to see you look so well— What gentleman is this?" Said Carrie—she walked on in, And gave Laura a kiss.

"That's good," mused Riley to himself, "I'd like that any day; I wonder why it was Northerly Did not do me that way."

"Excuse me for my thoughtlessness, Now this is Mr. Riley, Miss Carrie Lee—I tho't you'd met— He come from Brother Riley."

VOLUME 16.

SOME GREAT PRODUCTIONS:

Prominent Men Who Have

Spring From Livingston County.

Salem, Ky., Oct. 28th 1895.

ED. PRESS:—The Press has been a weekly visitor to my home from its birth to the present time, and my love for it has become stronger, and stronger as each week we meet. I am proud of the stand it has so ably, and justly taken on the silver question. For quite a while I tried to contribute in a small degree to the news of the CRITTENDEN PRESS but years have passed since then, and as a wanderer loves to return to his home, I would love to return once more to the home of the Press, and to write of some of the men of old Livingston County, whom we are proud of. We love to talk of men who have grown to fame, and for them, who were born, and raised in our own country. It would take up too much space in your paper to give an account or short history of all the men who have become very wealthy, or become prominent in politics were once citizens of Livingston County. Some have made great lawyers, some great doctors, I will mention some now and later on the others. There is Harlan Martin, born on a farm in this county, and many years ago while yet a young man he went to Texas with barely enough money to get him there, and began the battle of life. His education was limited, but he had plenty of lay-horse sense, and energy, grit and determination unlimited. He wore out every obstacle that came in his way and not only grew wealthy, but became one of the most prominent men in the political affairs of the State of Texas.

John Bass, was born in old Salem, the dearest, and best town in the State of Kentucky. No boy in all of old Livingston County, had a harder row to hoe, than honest John Bass, but he held it well, and this was his motto: "When you do any thing, do it well." When he left Kentucky he said he was going off to make his fortune, he moved to Indiana and is now one of the wealthiest men in that State, being worth millions of dollars.

James Alcorn, was born in Salem, and was once Sheriff of this county, moved to Mississippi, represented that State in Congress, and was elected its Governor.

Judge Kingman, for many years engaged in the practice of law, in Smithland, moved to Kansas, a very poor man, Kansas was a young State at that time and he had to endure many hardships, and privations, but he stuck to his text, and succeeded in going to the head of his profession, and has held many offices of honor in that State, for many years he was one of the judges of the court of Appeals. Mr. Kingman never cared any thing for money, and of course did not get rich. He has always been a great lover of books and has read every thing he could lay his eyes on. He has spent nearly every dollar he made for books, and if he has no money on hands will buy books on a credit. It matters not where you see Kingman, you will find him reading a book, if there is any credit in being called a book-worm, Kingman is entitled to it.

Roger Q. Mills, of Texas, another Livingston County boy, needs nothing from my pen, as every man who reads the political news of the day will be acquainted with him and his grand success in life. As a Livingston County man, I wish him continued success, and happiness to his journey's end.

W. D. Greer, was born on a farm near Salem, and went through all the hard ships of the average boy on a farm; with him it was work and chores, and work from early dawn to dusky night. Dave became weary of this and began to think how to better his condition in life. His only opportunity for school was during the winter months and he made good use of his time, having obtained a good education, he concluded to read law, and bent his energies in that direction he received his license to practice law, and by hard work and close application to his business soon rose to the head of the profession in Smithland. Many years ago he moved to Paducah

Ky., and to day has the largest practice of any lawyer in that city, and his reputation as a lawyer is not confined to the limits of this State. He was in co-partnership in the practice of law with Judge Kingman, many years ago, but he differs from Kingman in this he loves money, as well as books, and has provided well for the rainy day. Every lawyer who has a personal acquaintance with Dave Greer, will admit that he is the hardest working lawyer in this part of the State. He does not know what it is to rest, he works, and works, on his cases day and night, there seems to be no limit to his energy and determination, and that is the key to his success.

But we have one still with us greater than them all who towers above them in intellect, like the giant oak towers above the persimmon bush. He was not born in this county, but came to us when a young man, without a dollar in the world, but he came with principles of honor planted in his bosom as firmly as the everlasting hills. He was as poor as Lazarus, but his ambition to become a man loved, respected, and honored by his people, was as great as that of Napoleon, his brain power as great as that of Daniel Webster. I can see him now when he first began the study of law in Smithland, he looked green, and awkward, his clothes were worn thread-bare, almost ragged. He had to board here, and there about town on a credit, while reading law. The birds of the air had nests, and the foxes had holes but this man, had not where to lay his head, had not been for credit. And I thank God now, for placing on the face of every man that something by which other men can look him in the face and tell whether to give him credit or not, for were it not for this, many a "great diamond in the rough" would have to go forever, unpolished and unknown. Soon after this young man began the practice of law he formed a partnership with Hon. J. W. Bush, one of the best lawyers in the State of Kentucky, and who has done more towards helping, and encouraging young lawyers on to success than any man that ever lived in this county. From that time on he went rapidly to the front, he redeemed every pledge he made, and paid over debt he contracted. Some years afterwards he was elected county attorney, and was re-elected said office, while in that office he was a perfect terror to evil doers, law breakers, become obedient law abiding citizens, and peace and good order prevailed through out the county. Then he went on higher, and was elected State Senator, and while in Senate, made a national reputation, for every where people have read of the man, called honest Dick Tate, who proved to be a defaulter, and coupled with his name in every paper that gave an account of the affair, is honest John K. Hendrick, who detected Tate in his rascality, and drove him from the State. After that he was elected to the Congress of the United States, defeating the Hon. W. J. Stone, by a larger majority than any man defeated his opponent in the race for Congress in the United States, at the last election. Now mark my word, and watch his record in the next Congress, and see if he don't make the best Congress man we have had since the day's of Linn Boyd. I never knew John K. Hendrick to be wrong on any important question but one, and in that he is wrong, as certain as God made man. He is opposed to the free, and unlimited coinage of silver, and in that he is wrong. Free Silver.

ESCAPED UNDER FIRE.
Alleged Barn-burner Eluded Two Armed Officers.

Uniontown, Ky., Oct. 28.—Deputy Marshals Brashear and Davison went to John Crowman's, five miles from here, to-day, to arrest Samuel Slinger, who is wanted in Crittenden county for barn-burning and carrying concealed weapons. On seeing the approach of the Marshals, Slinger fled to a cornfield near by. Davidson went in one direction and Brashear another, intending to surround him. Brashear got within short distance of Slinger and hallooed "halt." Slinger stopped and made an effort to get a weapon of some kind, and Brashear turned a load of No. 4 shot into his body, but did not cripple him, and he made his escape, after being shot at four times. Brashear says he knows he hit him from his actions.

The force auditing the domestic accounts requires some three hundred clerks, while a baker's dozen finds no difficulty in keeping up with the foreign business.

The Sixth Auditor.

Washington, D. C. Oct. 30.—Every business transaction of the government involving the payment of money, from the millions appropriated for pensions and war ships, down to the smallest money order, has to be passed upon by officials of the Treasury Department before the matter is finally settled. To audit this enormous number of bills, involving several hundred millions of dollars each year, the Treasury Department is provided with six divisions of accountants, each having its own branch of the public service to look after.

The Sixth Auditor, now officially known as "The Auditor for the Post Office Department," requires from 450 to 500 assistants to keep track of the business of that branch of the service alone. When the quantity of business done each year is understood it will be seen that these officials find plenty of work to do to "earn their salt."

When the present auditor, Mr. George A. Howard, assumed the duties of his office, he found himself confronted with an accumulation of thirty-five millions of paid money orders, which had to be first assorted by the paying offices and compared with reports of postmasters who paid the orders, and then resorted by the issuing officers and compared with the reports sent in by the postmasters who issued the orders.

After the accounts are settled the orders are tied up in bundles and kept for at least ten years. Two hundred and twenty-four tons of orders issued between 1864 and 1884 have just been sold as waste paper, realizing the government $1,650.

As the result of the investigation of the "Docket" Congressional committee into the mode of conducting the work of the governments, a number of changes have been made in the Sixth Auditor's office. The old postal notes have been done away with, and a new money order has been issued with requires but a single checking and that against the paying office. When a postmaster sends in the orders paid during the week, he sends a list of them also. If the returned orders tally with the list the account is closed and that is the end of the transaction.

For the use of postmasters the orders are bound up in book form. Between the order and the stub are a series of coupons representing dollars and cents. The order is torn off in such a way that the coupons attached to it will represent the amount for which the order is drawn. The stubs are sent in with the reports of the issuing postmaster and if the coupons missing from the stub correspond with the amount given on the list his account also is balanced. This plan, borrowed from the United States Express Company, saves a vast amount of work, and reduces the number of people employed in the old "assorting division" by nearly a hundred. The domestic money order system includes over 20,000 post offices, and handles each year from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000.

Another branch of the auditor's office, the "Foreign Money Order Division," looks after the foreign exchange, for in the principle post offices of the country you can now purchase a money order upon almost any civilized country except Russia, Mexico and the South American Republics. These countries do not even have domestic systems. When a postmaster is asked for a foreign order he gives the applicant a receipt for the sum, and he draws an order upon New York if the money is to be paid in Europe, or upon San Francisco if it is to be paid in Asia. The New York or San Francisco office will send a copy of the order to the exchange office in the proper country and in that country the nearest postmaster will be directed to pay the money to the person for whom it is intended. In many countries, as in Germany, it is taken directly to the house of the party. There is no order given to be mailed by the purchaser directly to the payee, as is the case with domestic orders.

For the Canadian business there are six exchange offices, extending from Bangor to Seattle, and orders are drawn upon the nearest exchange office. The force auditing the domestic accounts requires some three hundred clerks, while a baker's dozen finds no difficulty in keeping up with the foreign business.

The "Bookkeeping Division" requires about seventy-five accountants, all of them are men, because of the great weight of the enormous ledgers. The "Bookkeeping Division" requires about seventy-five accountants, all of them are men, because of the great weight of the enormous ledgers.

The "Pay Division" audits the accounts of all classes of mail transportation expenses, amounting to upwards of $40,000,000 annually.

The divisions referred to are the most important ones in the Sixth Auditor's Office. There are several minor divisions, each having its own particular line of work. The whole represents a wonderfully effective yet simple plan for regulating the postal system of the country.

All Smoke.

The Louisville Times says:

Judge W. H. Gardner, the State Inspector and examiner, is in the city to-day, en route to spend Sunday at his home at Elizabethtown. He was appointed by Gov. Brown four years ago, and his duty is to examine closely the Auditor's office, as well as all other public offices in Kentucky.

A reporter for the Times sought Judge Gardner and asked what there was in the charges made against the Auditor's office, in which it is alleged there is mismanagement and a necessity for making a change in order that the books may be opened to the public.

The reply was as follows: "The business methods of the Auditor's office are too well known to require a denial of such charges. They are unworthy of notice and are manufactured and circulated for campaign purposes only. The records of this office have not been closed to the public, to my personal knowledge since I have been Inspector, and if a change should be made, which I do not think the people have any idea of making, take my word for it, the Republicans will not find a crookedness or a fraud in that office."

"How do you know this, Judge, in view of the fact that a difference is known to exist between the Governor and Auditor, and it is supposed by some that access to the Auditor's books would be denied you."

"That is a mistaken notion entirely," said the Judge. "A variance does exist, but that has not prevented me from performing my duty, nor the Auditor from affording me full opportunity to do it. Not only has the Auditor not refused me access to the books of his office, but I have had at all times the prompt and ready assistance of any or all the clerks of his office. I can truthfully say that no public office in Kentucky has been more thoroughly overhauled and rigidly examined in detail in every department than this one, reaching back beyond the entire time of Maj. Norman."

In fact, I have devoted about one-half of my time since April, 1892, when I was appointed Inspector by Gov. Brown, to an examination of this office, and though I have had various and numerous outside as well as inside official records from which to check against the Auditor's office, I have not discovered a single instance or item in which the State has been defrauded out of a cent."

"As it has been my unvarying rule to shield no guilty man, Democrat or Republican, you may rest assured if any fraud had been discovered by me in this office I would promptly have reported it to the Governor. In addition to the test of honesty which I applied to this office in the matter of public money received by it and paid over to the Treasurer, I can further say its leading features under the splendid system maintained by Auditor Norman are neatness, courtesy, efficiency, accuracy and a painstaking care to guard the interest of the State, and to properly discharge every duty incumbent upon the office. With his superior corps of clerks, his office could not be otherwise than in a first-class and honestly conducted."

Sound Advice to Democrats.
"To me it is quite clear that the sound money men should keep in touch with all the members of the Democratic party. By doing so we may bring the united Democracy of the State to the support of sound money candidate for the Presidency 1896. It would be fatal to the cause in Kentucky to array the Democratic people in two hostile factions. The path of safety lies in keeping together and in electing our State ticket. When that is done we can take up the work of preparing for the national campaign of 1896, and can work together through a compact Democratic organization."—Senator Lindsay.

"Yes, Driver's the mule for me; I'll keep him too, for life; For if I'd been upon his back I'd now have had a wife."

"It makes me sick to think of it; My grief I can not hide; Instead of being among the spooks, I'd have a lovely bride."

"I'm tired, ay, worn out, sitting here; 'Tis not a pleasant seat, This limb's not cushion'd suitably— This I need not repeat."

The hours passed slowly, slowly by, Chat welcomed the slight Low in the east faint streaks of red, The coming of daylight.

The wolves were still around the tree; Sometimes they'd give a yell, Then look up eagerly at Chat, As though they wished for help.

But suddenly they seemed dismayed— The change, too, Chat had seen— And scamped off in great affright, And fear toward Wolf Ravine.

He had not long to wait to learn The cause of their affright; He filled his heart too, with despair, For 'twas a fearful sight.

A savage beast came rushing up— A panther—Chat could see It as it paused, looked up, and then Began to climb the tree.

CHAPTER XX.
POOR LAURA.

The poets, painters, sages, bards Have always chosen to dwell Upon the heavy-borne theme of love, And of its beauties tell.

When Adam first beheld the form Of Eve, that she was fair, And she, in turn smiled back at him; 'Twas settled, then and there.

And so it is, and so 'twill be— Foretaste of bliss above— The one great conqueror of hearts— The mystic power of love.

Though pessimists may ridicule; Old bachelors may frown; And maidens of uncertain age May doubt—but 'twill not down.

And just so long as man shall live; So long as time shall last, The cord of love, unbreakable, Will bind hearts firm and fast.

The secret of all happiness; The banner of strife; Unswerving in its fervency— It comes but once in life.

A wretch is he who but deceives— Who falsely acts his part! The same is she whose fickleness Rends some fond, and manly heart!

As Laura, pale, yet beautiful, Sat, pondering o'er and o'er, A "sympathizing" neighbor came And rapped upon the door.

The night had passed and morning dawned; 'Twas Wednesday now no more; The business world's rush, push and stir Went on, just as before.

With those of whom we have to write, Howe's 'twas different; Work seemed suspended, business stopped, with one consent.

"Good morning, Northcutt," Laura said; He bowed and raised his hat— "How are you, Laura," he replied; "Heard any news from Chat?"

"No, Mr. Northcutt," she replied; "No news yet—no word."

"Well, Laura," Northcutt then returned, "I'll tell you what I've heard."

"Oh, have you any news from Chat?" "Oh, tell it—do!" she said; "Say did he fall among the wolves?"

"Is he alive or—dead?" "Poor Laura scarce could speak the word Overcome now by her fears, She bowed her head upon her hands, And sought relief in tears."

"Alive, I suppose, Northcutt replied— His voice would sound somewhat quiver— "For he, last night at ten o'clock, Was seen to cross the river."

"A gentleman who lives down there?" Northcutt went on—"says that A man and woman went across— He swears the man was Chat."

"I don't believe a word of it!" Cried Laura—"tell you that! What! Run off with another girl? I know it was not Chat!"

"And why did you come here, Northcutt To bring such news as that?" "Tis false—tis not the nature sir— 'Twas not my poor, lost Chat!"

Her eyes were sparkling as she closed. She rose, picked up a broom, and, looking to his bed, she was flying from the room.

"I don't believe a word of it!" Cried Laura—"tell you that! What! Run off with another girl? I know it was not Chat!"

In a letter to the manufacturer Benjamin, editor of the Spectator, N. Y. says: "It may please you to know the Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is held by the people of your own State, where they must be best known. An aunt of mine, who resides at Dexter, Iowa, was about to visit me a few years ago, and before leaving home wrote me, asking if they were sold here, stating if they were not she would bring a quantity with her, as she did not like to be without them." The medicines referred to are Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cure of coughs and colds, Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism, lame back, pains in the side and chest, and Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy, for bowel complaints. These medicines have been in constant use in Iowa for almost a quarter of a century. The people have learned that they are articles of great worth and value, and unequaled by any other, and are for sale here by Orme Bros.

ISSUED WEEKLY.

R. C. WALKER, Publisher.

ONE YEAR ONE DOLLAR

Vote for Uncle Jeff—the loyal, honest and capable old Democrat.

Gov. Brown has fixed November 8, for the hanging of Columbus at Bowling Green.

The facts and figures all show that State affairs have been honestly administered in Kentucky.

Newton & Robertson's dry goods store at Morganfield, was destroyed by fire Saturday. Loss, $22,000.

At Tiffin, O., a mob attacked the jail for the purpose of lynching a murderer, and two of the leaders were killed by the guards.

It is now stated that the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight will take place in private at Tor near Hot Springs today.

Bamberger, Bloom & Co., of Louisville, the largest wholesale dry goods house in the South, has made an assignment. Liabilities estimated at $1,200,000.

Four persons will go to the penitentiary from the Caldwell county Circuit court. Three of the men implicated in the Howton mob have been indicted for murder.

It was the man who went into the war and fought, and not those who remained at home that won our liberties from the British. What is true of war, is true of the other duties and privileges of citizenship.

Gov. Brown is not only a good governor but a good Democrat, he came from Frankfort to Henderson to register, and will make the trip again Tuesday to vote the ticket from one end to the other.

The trial of H. H. Holmes, the man accused of so many murders, was begun in Philadelphia Monday. Because he could not get a continuance, his lawyers withdrew from the case and the defendant will act for himself.

By all means let our citizens observe the sanitary conditions prescribed by the State Board of Health. We have had no diphtheria so far, while other communities near us are suffering. Let us not invite it.

Poor Cash Clay. Not a single word has been said in his behalf. The papers all over the state, the Louisville Post excepted, have roared him in all styles for his pains in bolting the ticket. His home papers have not let him escape. His influence in the party is at an end.

This is a mighty poor time for Democrats to lag or to be laggards. It is easy enough to stand by your party when everything is running smoothly, but when there is internal strife, when you have been a little disappointed yourself in not getting exactly the men you want, then is the time to try your grit.

Very few of us ever get every thing exactly to our taste, and he who fails to participate in affairs because his particular ideas are not always strictly observed is not a practical man. Put up with the best you can get and hope for something more to your liking next time. Let Democrats remember this when in the voting booth next Tuesday.

James Whitcomb Riley has completed a new series of poems in which he varies the treatment of each one to such an extent that they are said to show the Hoosier poet's versatility to a remarkable degree. He has given the series to the Ladies' Home Journal, in which the first is about to be published. A. B. Frost has been engaged by the magazine to illustrate the poems.

Not much has been heard from Jim McKinzie, since he came home from Peru a few weeks ago. A Times correspondent has recently interviewed him and finds that he will do like Carlisle, vote the ticket from top to bottom. Cash Clay seems to be about the only prominent man who proposes to bolt the convention.

If Harlin had made a dodge on the money question, there would be no talk of scratching; but he is honest in his convictions, and above board in stating them, and these qualities alone should recommend him to the voters. He is no artful dodger.

How a Democrat can afford to scratch Harlin is more than the Press can comprehend. A thoroughly competent man, whose integrity is above questioning, and one who has given incomparable service to his party at all times, he is the peer of any man in the state.

Congressman Hendricks is giving the State ticket as enthusiastic support as any of us. While he does not agree with Harlin on the silver issue, he most emphatically agrees that it is the duty of every Democrat to vote the ticket from Alpha to Omega, inclusive.

Congressman Stone is working like a time-tried and true Democrat, he is for the entire ticket. There is no sulking about him. The man who comes to time when he is out of office as well as when he is in, is a Democrat who believes in Democratic principles.

Elections for Next Tuesday.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Next Tuesday general elections will be held in Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Utah and Virginia. Governors will be chosen in Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Mississippi, New Jersey, Ohio and Utah, provided the proposed constitution is adopted by the people of that territory, thus investing it with the full privileges of statehood. Failure of this result, which is not probable, would postpone a mission to the Union indefinitely and nullify the vote for state officers.

Judge Holt and Mr. Samuel H. Stone addressed the people of this place Thursday. Mr. Stone made only a short speech announcing his candidacy for Auditor on the Republican ticket. Judge Holt presented the Republican side of the issues of the campaign in a speech of some length. He is a good speaker and made the best Republican speech that has been made here this year. He charges mismanagement in state affairs and advocates the single gold standard. The Republicans were well pleased with his speech.

John Hendrick's speech last Friday was one of the best that has been made in Marion this year. The crowd to hear him was small, but he spoke with none the less enthusiasm. His speech was devoted mainly to state issues, and the fair and impartial spirit with which he treated his subject, made him the more convincing. He did not discuss the currency question, but urged Democrats, irrespective of their views on this point to rally to the support of the state ticket. Nothing, he said, could be gained on this question by a failure to support Harlin—a worthy man, who had always been fighting for the cause of Democracy.

The report of the commissioner of Education for the year ended November 30, 1893, which has just been published, shows that the number of pupils enrolled in schools and colleges, public and private, was 15,083,630, or 22.5 per cent of the country. Of this number, 13,510,719 were in the public schools, and they had 122,056 male and 260,954 female teachers. According to the details of attendance, it appears that children in the United States leave school for about two-fifths of the year to engage in labor, or from other motives. In the last twenty years, the value of school property and the amount of common expenditure have more than doubled.

Mr. O. M. James returned from the Purchase Tuesday night where he has been making speeches for ten days. He visited every county and addressed the people in most of them. He has good crowds at all of his appointments, and had joint discussions with Judge Holt, Ben Keys, and Tom Pettit. The Democracy is stirred up and is at work with its old time enthusiasm. Oily goes to Livingston county to-day. He speaks at Salem, Hampton and Carversville. He will also speak at Tolt Saturday night at 7 P. M.

John G. Will Vote.

Sues Goebel.

COVINGTON, Ky., Oct. 25.—Hallam & Pence, attorneys for Mrs. Marshall Stanford, have prepared her petition against Senator William Goebel, and it was filed to day in the Kenton Circuit Court. The petition charges that the defendant willfully, feloniously, maliciously and not in self-defense, with a firearm, did murder the said John L. Stanford. She asks damages in the sum of one hundred thousand dollars.

In his speech, Congressman Hendricks referred to some facts concerning State matters that it is well to remember.

In 1867, when the Democrats took charge, there was a law authorizing a $3.00 poll tax, now the law made by Democrats allows a poll tax of only $1.50. In 1867, when the Democrats took charge, the school per capita, was only 72 cents, now, under Democratic management, it is $2.82. Then we had only 60 and 90 days school, now we have five and six months school. Then anybody who could read and write was allowed to draw the salary, now teachers have to be qualified.

It is charged that we are paying more for salaries now, but the facts are that we are paying the State officers the same salaries that were paid them in 1867. For ten years these salaries had been cut down: now they are right where they were in 1867. Some new offices had been created, because new interests demanded them. In 1867, we had very few railroads, now we had thousands of miles, and these great corporations had to be looked after to see that they paid taxes on their property like other people: we had no county supervisors to see that the county was properly listed for taxation, and to make the railroads come up fair, we have railroad commissioners. We have mining interests that we did not have in 1867; we have banks that we did not have in 1867, and all these needed looking after, hence the necessity of some new officers.

In the Republican State of Michigan, where they have practically the same officers as in Kentucky, they pay their officers $160,000 more than Kentucky pays hers.

In the Republican State of Kansas, they pay their officers $59,000 more than Kentucky pays.

In Ohio, rock-ribbed Republican, the State pays $279,000 more to its officers than does Kentucky.

The Situation.

The tide has been against us and in our favor, against us again and yet another time our way. After the first joint debate between Bradley and Harlin it was decidedly against us. Then after the Eminence episode it was with us and Republicans were dejected and despairing. Bradley, however, rallied and a wave of Republican enthusiasm again swept over the state. But the past ten days Democratic confidence has been growing. The people have become disgusted with overdone Republican campaign stories and refuse longer to believe them. Gen. Harlin has had an unexampled tour through the mountains, where it was said he had few silver sympathizers, but whence comes the news he will lead even the mountain men on the ticket. The Populist vote is being fast dissipated and Harlin gains. The western districts send even better reports than in the east.

The warring factions of the Sixth and Seventh have laid down their arms and promise fine Democratic majorities. The Fourth boasts that it will do better than the Second for Democracy. But most significant of all is the present situation in Louisville. A visitor to that city to day will find a far different aspect upon the political horizon from that which existed ten days ago. Many significant changes have been made. Hundreds of prominent men, who were counted as lost to the Democratic party for the present, have relented and declared their intention to vote the whole ticket. Some of these have even become liberal contributors to the Democratic campaign fund. They have come to their sober senses. They have realized that the defeat of the Democratic ticket, or any member of it, this year, means that Kentucky will be hopeless to the Democrats in the presidential campaign next year; that the worst blow they could strike their own political favorites for the future would be to stab Harlin now; that to scratch the head of the Democratic ticket would result in minimizing Louisville's representation and influence in future Democratic conventions. The situation is growing better and better every day. It can be felt in the atmosphere. The Democratic campaign managers were yesterday in high spirits. Their good returns from all over the state were supplemented by a most satisfactory pull of Jefferson county showing 900 Democratic majority. The work of effective Democratic organization is going on rapidly in Louisville. The best men of the party have undertaken it. All is encouraging.

Upon the part of the Republican leaders in Louisville it is admitted that the Democrats are making considerable gains in that city. Privately they no longer claim with any show of confidence Bradley's election. No bets can be laid from them. They still boast, and seem to believe, however, that the best Harlin can come to Louisville with 11,000 majority, and they have not abandoned all hope that they can overcome this there.

This is the true situation as the Messenger gets it from its own avenues of information from the Democratic campaign committee, who have not hesitated to frankly tell it the news that was unfavorable when it was unfavorable and from high Republican sources.

It is not claimed that the Democrats will win by an old time majority of 30,000 or 40,000, but it is quite manifest that the old party, which has never failed to carry Kentucky, will have a signal triumph on November 5, all circumstances considered. And if the gains continue during these closing days of the campaign, in the ratio they have come the past week, there may be a majority that will surprise everybody.—Owensboro Messenger.

The Daughters of The American Revolution.

The New York chapter of the Daughters of The American Revolution, is one of the oldest and largest, and may be taken as a fair representative of the others.

New England contributed a large portion of patriots to General Washington's army, and in that section of the country the Daughters are a particularly flourishing society. One of its with nearly twelve hundred members, is the banner State of the Union; New York comes next, her membership being about eleven hundred. In the South, too, the society is very active. That it is recognized as a very important institution is proved by the fact that two days, October 18 and 19, will be "Daughters' Day" at the Atlanta Exposition, and will be celebrated by meetings of society, and the reading of papers and addresses by prominent members.

Only two States are without representation in the society. In every direction it is growing rapidly in size and influence. It is already an important factor in American civil and social life, and promises as the years pass to become a very great one,—a vast potentiality on the side of right and patriotism. Standing as it does for things which are highest and best in our civilization, the Society of the Daughters of The American Revolution is an honor to this country, and a monument to the talent of women, so often denied, for organization and government.—From "Woman Guardians of Patriotism," in Demore's Magazine for November.

Hugh Mulholland, who got into trouble while postmaster at Paducah, and was pardoned by President Harrison, is in jail again charged with obtaining money under false pretenses.

FREDONIA.

I will give a liberal reward for the return of a fine knife stolen from my tool chest, in stable shed, sometime within the last week. It had "compliments of Langstaff Orm Mfg Co., Paducah, Ky., on one side of the handle and their ad. on other side, and another reward for the capture and conviction of the thief.

Hon. Judge Holt, of Frankfort, spoke to a large crowd in the court house in Princeton last Friday, on the financial status of our state, the cause of, and remedy for its present bankrupt condition; but we had as well stay in the frying pan as to jump into the fire.

Hon. John K. Hendrick was in Princeton last Saturday morning.

Don't forget that Bugg & Loyd have the newest, fullest and best selected stock of goods to be found in this part of the country. Call and see them.

Sacramental services at the Baptist church last Sunday.

J. E. Carter and wife went to the Atlanta exposition last week.

Hon. John K. Hendrick is a better man than a great many accused him of being during his candidacy. The Bible says "do good for evil." He certainly obeys that command strictly and that is a great deal more than many of his persecutors do.

A tea party at Rev. J. N. McDonald's last week.

The smallest attendance at Sunday school at the C. P. church last Sunday that has been for perhaps three years.

The preacher said during the meeting that a great many people had "spiritual dyspepsia," but that is a disease, the doctors around here do not profess to understand, and advocate no especial remedy for the disease.

I have two good mares I would like to exchange for free coinage silver dollars or 25 cent corn. Call at once if you want the best bargains ever heard of.

W. C. Glenn.

The continued dry weather is becoming a serious matter in this part of the country.

William Perry, formerly of Princeton, has just returned after an absence of thirty or more years and will make this county his future home.

Born to the wife of B. F. Smith last week, a fine large boy. Not much over sixty years difference in ages of father and son.

Will Carter will make the race for constable in this district, and will no doubt get almost the entire vote of the district. He would make an excellent officer.

Thomas Phelps and Miss Early were married last week. This is the third time Tom has launched his barque out on the boisterous sea of matrimony.

J. W. Stegar, of Princeton, was in town Sunday.

Steven Bennett, wife and daughter, Miss Pursey, have been on the sick list for the past two or three weeks.

The Press.

ISSUED WEEKLY.

R. C. WALKER, Publisher.

ONE YEAR - ONE DOLLAR

Vote for Uncle Jeff—the loyal, honest and capable old Democrat.

Gov. Brown has fixed November 8, for the hanging of Columbus at Bowling Green.

The facts and figures all show that State affairs have been honestly administered in Kentucky.

Newton & Robertson's dry goods store at Morganfield, was destroyed by fire Saturday. Loss, $22,000.

At Tiffin, O., a mob attacked the jail for the purpose of lynching a murderer, and two of the leaders were killed by the guards.

It is now stated that the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight will take place in private at Tor near Hot Springs today.

Bamberger, Bloom & Co., of Louisville, the largest wholesale dry goods house in the South, has made an assignment. Liabilities estimated at $1,200,000.

Four persons will go to the penitentiary from the Caldwell county Circuit court. Three of the men implicated in the Howton mob have been indicted for murder.

It was the man who went into the war and fought, and not those who remained at home that won our liberties from the British. What is true of war, is true of the other duties and privileges of citizenship.

Gov. Brown is not only a good governor but a good Democrat, he came from Frankfort to Henderson to register, and will make the trip again Tuesday to vote the ticket from one end to the other.

The trial of H. H. Holmes, the man accused of so many murders, was begun in Philadelphia Monday. Because he could not get a continuance, his lawyers withdrew from the case and the defendant will act for himself.

By all means let our citizens observe the sanitary conditions prescribed by the State Board of Health. We have had no diphtheria so far, while other communities near us are suffering. Let us not invite it.

Post Cash Clay. Not a single word has been said in his behalf. The papers all over the state, the Louisville Post excepted, have roasted him in all styles for his pains in bolting the ticket. His home papers have not let him escape. His influence in the party is at an end.

This is a mighty poor time for Democrats to lag or to be laggards. It is easy enough to stand by your party when everything is running smoothly, but when there is internal strife, when you have been a little disappointed yourself in not getting elected, when you want, then is

Very few of us ever get every thing exactly to our taste, and he who fails to participate in affairs because his particular ideas are not always strictly observed is not a practical man. Put up with the best you can get and hope for something more to your liking next time. Let Democrats remember this when in the voting booth next Tuesday.

James Whitcomb Riley has completed a new series of poems in which he varies the treatment of each one to such an extent that they are said to show the Hoosier poet's versatility to a remarkable degree. He has given the series to the Ladies Home Journal, in which the first is about to be published. A. B. Frost has been engaged by the magazine to illustrate the poems.

Not much has been heard from Jim McKimble, since he came home from Peru a few weeks ago. A Times correspondent has recently interviewed him and finds that he will do like Carlisle, vote the ticket from top to bottom. Cash Clay seems to be about the only prominent man who proposes to bolt the convention.

If Harlin had made a dodge on the money question, there would be no talk of scratching; but he is honest in his convictions, and above board in stating them, and these qualities alone should recommend him to the voters. He is no artful dodger.

How a Democrat can afford to scratch Harlin is more than the Press can comprehend. A thoroughly competent man, whose integrity is above questioning, and one who has given incomparable service to his party at all times, he is the peer of any man in the state.

Congressman Hendricks is giving the State ticket as enthusiastic support as any of us. While he does not agree with Harlin on the silver issue, he most emphatically agrees that it is the duty of every Democrat to vote the ticket from Alpha to Omega, inclusive.

Congressman Stone is working like a time-tried and true Democrat, he is for the entire ticket. There is no sulking about him. The man who comes to time when he is out of office as well as when he is in, is a Democrat who believes in Democratic principles.

Elections For Next Tuesday.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Next Tuesday general elections will be held in Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Utah and Virginia. Governors will be chosen in Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Mississippi, New Jersey, Ohio and Utah, provided the proposed constitution is adopted by the people of that territory, thus investing it with the full privileges of statehood. Failure of this result, which is not probable, would postpone a decision to the Union indirectly and nullify the vote for state officers.

Judge Holt and Mr. Samuel H. Stone addressed the people of this place Thursday. Mr. Stone made only a short speech announcing his candidacy for Auditor on the Republican ticket. Judge Holt presented the Republican side of the issues of the campaign in a speech of some length. He is a good speaker and made the best Republican speech that has been made here this year. He charges mismanagement in state affairs and advocates the single gold standard. The Republicans were well pleased with his speech.

John Hendrick's speech last Friday was one of the best that has been made in Marion this year. The crowd to hear him was small, but he spoke with none the less enthusiasm. His speech was devoted mainly to state issues, and the fair and impartial spirit with which he treated his subject, made him the more convincing. He did not discuss the currency question, but urged Democrats, irrespective of their views on this point to rally to the support of the state ticket. Nothing, he said, could be gained on this question by a failure to support Harlin—a worthy man, who had always been battling for the cause of Democracy.

The report of the commissioner of Education for the year ended November 30, 1893, which has just been published, shows that the number of pupils enrolled in schools and colleges, public and private, was 15,083,630, or 22.5 per cent of the country. Of this number, 13,510,719 were in the public schools, and they had 122,056 male and 260,954 female teachers. According to the details of attendance, it appears that children in the United States leave school for about two-fifths of the year to engage in labor, or from other motives. In the last twenty years, the value of school property and the amount of common expenditure have more than doubled.

Mr. O. M. James returned from the Purchase Tuesday night where he has been making speeches for ten days. He visited every county and addressed the people in most of them. He has good crowds at all of his appointments, and had joint discussions with Judge Holt, Ben Keys, and Tom Pettit. The Democracy is stirred up and is at work with its old time enthusiasm. Oily goes to Livingston county to-day. He speaks at Salem, Hampton and Carverville. He will also speak at Tolu Saturday night at 7 P. M.

John G. Will Vote.

Sues Goebel.

COVINGTON, Ky., Oct. 25.—Hallam & Pence, attorneys for Mrs. Marshall Stanford, have prepared her petition against Senator William Goebel, and it was filed to day in the Kenton Circuit Court. The petition charges that the defendant wilfully, feloniously, maliciously and not in self-defense, with a firearm, did murder the said John L. Stanford. She asks damages in the sum of one hundred thousand dollars.

In his speech, Congressman Hendricks referred to some facts concerning State matters that it is well to remember.

In 1867, when the Democrats took charge, there was a law authorizing a $3.00 poll tax, now the law made by Democrats allows a poll tax of only $1.50. In 1867, when the Democrats took charge, the school per capita, was only 72 cents, now, under Democratic management, it is $2.82. Then we had only 60 and 90 days school, now we have five and six months school. Then anybody who could read and write was allowed to draw the salary, now teachers have to be qualified.

It is charged that we are paying more for salaries now, but the facts are that we are paying the State officers the same salaries that were paid them in 1867. For ten years these salaries had been cut down: now they are right where they were in 1867. Some new offices had been created, because new interests demanded them. In 1867, we had very few railroads, now we had thousands of miles, and these great corporations had to be looked after to see that they paid taxes on their property like other people; we had no county supervisors to see that the county was properly listed for taxation, and to make the railroads come up fair, we have railroad commissioners. We have mining interests that we did not have in 1867; we have banks that we did not have in 1867, and all these needed looking after, hence the necessity of some new officers.

In the Republican State of Michigan, where they have practically the same officers as in Kentucky, they pay their officers $160,000 more than Kentucky pays hers.

In the Republican State of Kansas, they pay their officers $59,000 more than Kentucky pays.

In Ohio, rock-ribbed Republican, the State pays 279,000 more to its officers than does Kentucky.

The Situation.

The tide has been against us and in our favor, against us again and yet another time our way. After the first joint debate between Bradley and Harlin it was decidedly against us. Then after the Eminence episode it was with us and Republicans were dejected and despairing. Bradley, however, rallied and a wave of Republican enthusiasm again swept over the state. But the past ten days Democratic confidence has been growing. The people have become disgusted with overdone Republican campaign stories and refuse to believe them. Gen. Harlin has had an unexampled tour through the mountains, where it was said he had few silver sympathizers, but whence comes the news he will lead even the mountain men on the ticket. The Populist vote is being fast dissipated and Harlin gains. The western districts send even better reports than in the east.

The warring factions of the Sixth and Seventh have laid down their arms and promise fine Democratic coadjutors. The Fourth boasts that it will do better than the Second for country the Daughters are a party.

Your room residence, good

Democracy. But most significant of all is the present situation in Louisville. A visitor to that city to day will find a far different aspect upon the political horizon from that which existed ten days ago. Many significant changes have been made. Hundreds of prominent men, who were counted as lost to the Democratic party for the present, have relented and declared their intention to vote the whole ticket. Some of these have even become liberal contributors to the Democratic campaign fund. They have come to their sober senses. They have realized that the defeat of the Democratic ticket, or any member of it, this year, means that Kentucky will be hopeless to the Democrats in the presidential campaign next year; that the worst blow they could strike their own political favorites for the future would be to stab Harlin now; that to scratch the head of the Democratic ticket would result in minimizing Louisville's representation and influence in future Democratic conventions. The situation is growing better and better every day. It can be felt in the atmosphere. The Democratic campaign managers were yesterday in high spirits. Their good returns from all over the state were supplemented by a most satisfactory pull of Jefferson county showing 900 Democratic majority. The work of effective Democratic organization is going on rapidly in Louisville. The best men of the party have undertaken it. All is encouraging.

Upon the part of the Republican leaders in Louisville it is admitted that the Democrats are making considerable gains in that city. Privately they no longer claim with any show of confidence Bradley's election. No bets can be laid from them. They still boast, and seem to believe, however, that the best Harlin can come to Louisville with 11,000 majority, and they have not abandoned all hope that they can overcome this there.

This is the true situation as the Messenger gets it from its own avenues of information from the Democratic campaign committee, who have not hesitated to frankly tell it the news that was unfavorable when it was unfavorable and from high Republican sources.

It is not claimed that the Democrats will win by an old time majority of 30,000 or 40,000, but it is quite manifest that the old party, which has never failed to carry Kentucky, will have a signal triumph on November 5, all circumstances considered. And if the gains continue during these closing days of the campaign, in the ratio they have come the past week, there may be a majority that will surprise everybody.—Owensboro Messenger.

The Daughters of the American Revolution.

The New York chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, is one of the oldest and largest, and may be taken as a fair representative of the others.

New England contributed a large portion of patriots to General Washington's army, and in that section of the country during the war. One hundred and thirty-four members of the organization, with nearly twelve hundred members, is the banner State of the Union; New York comes next, her membership being about eleven hundred. In the South, too, the society is very active. That it is recognized as a very important institution is proved by the fact that two days, October 18 and 19, will be "Daughters' Day" at the Atlanta Exposition, and will be celebrated by meetings of society, and the reading of papers and addresses by prominent members.

Only two States are without representation in the society. In every direction it is growing rapidly in size and influence. It is already an important factor in American civil and social life, and promises as the years pass to become a very great one, a vast potentiality on the side of right and patriotism. Standing as it does for things which are highest and best in our civilization, the Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution is an honor to this country, and a monument to the talent of women, so often denied, for organization and government.—From "Woman Guardians of Patriotism," in Demore's Magazine for November.

The white caps, or night rovers, or regulators, as they are variously termed, are, according to report, still abroad in some portions of the county. Various persons have been called from their beds to find themselves confronted with bands varying in numbers from four to twenty persons, and given orders to deport themselves according to rules suggested by the nightly visitors. These affairs have been confined to a scope of country between Crittenden Springs and Hurricane. Saturday night a man in the neighborhood of Mr. A. Dean's was called up and out, and told that he must work harder, and that his wife, who had been assisting him in some field work, must not be permitted to do that character of work again. The man who was called out, first showed fight, and presented his pistol, but he was soon persuaded to forego any intentions of that kind. He finally agreed to do as directed, and the visitors left, promising to bother him no more, if he complied with orders.

Goods are now being hauled from Marion to Carville on wagons, a distance of 22 miles. Navigation on the Ohio has closed, and this is the best point for Carville merchants to get their goods.

Wm Coram came up from Carville Tuesday after a wagon load of goods for the merchants of that place. He says everybody down there now is for a rail road and for it by a large majority.

There has been a number of conversations at the meeting at the C. P. church. Rev. Chappell is an eloquent logical, preacher and the people have fallen in love with him.

Miss Nellie Butler, daughter of the late C. W. Butler, is very ill at the residence of her brother-in-law, Mr. Will Mayes, west of town. She has lung disease and her recovery is doubtful.

There was a public literary entertainment at the school house Friday night, and it was a pleasant affair. The pupils of the school are taking great interest in their work, and the first examination showed material progress.

Mr. J. T. Woolf was in town Monday. He has recently moved from Kelsey to Salem and embarked in the mill business, and he protests that he likes milling better than merchandising.

Mr. John P. Reed, the stock man, who travels over the county ever day, reports that about one-fourth of the wheat is up, and that which is up is very sickly looking. He thinks the outlook for a good crop is anything but encouraging.

Five steamboats, it is said, are hovering around a small pool of water in the Ohio opposite R. N. Grady's. They can't get forward nor backward, and if the water continues to assuage they will soon be in the middle of a sandy desert.

Had you observed that cough and other indications of a severe cold that our postmaster is nursing? He got it at Barnes's lake last week. He and Jas. Gilbert went down to have some fun with the fish; the old boat sunk in twelve feet of cold water, and the fish had some fun with them.

Mr. J. D. O'Bannon, of Benton, with a number of assistance, arrived yesterday, for the purpose of canvassing the county for Browning's Scientific chum, mention of which has been made in this paper. This chum is said to be the best thing of the age in its line, and as it comes with the best endorsement, the people will do well to give it a fair trial.

Dr. J. V. Hayden, of Salem, was in town Monday. He reports that there are yet several cases of diphtheria in Salem and vicinity, and he is surprised that the disease has not made its appearance in Marion. Our people would be wise if they protect themselves against it, and the immunity to be had along the lines recommended by the State Board of Health, as published in this paper last week.

Judge J. F. Dempsey, the Democrat nominee for Railroad Commissioner, was in town Monday. He met a good many people and they were well pleased with him, and he was likewise pleased with them and the hearty reception he received. Judge Dempsey is one of the best men in the State, and his splendid qualities and gentlemanly bearing, easily made us forgive him for defeating our Bob for the nomination.

W. B. Yandell's new residence has about reached completion and it is one of the handsomest in town. Not only is the outside beautiful and substantial but the finish of the interior is elegant. Such houses add materially to the good appearance of a town; and Mr. Yandell has shown a commendable spirit of enterprise in putting up such a house.

In removing the judges stand in the court-house a few days ago the jailer found a letter under the stand; the first paragraph of the letter read as follows:

This the 24th day of April, 1871. Known by this that on that day this stand by which this little note is created from the prying eyes of the world, was closed by the hands of J. W. McCaslin, J. H. Crudup, G. A. Martin and S. Heerick, the same four being the builders of this house.

Some day, some time, some where, you will probably know what it is to have sick-headache. Do not go to the drug store and take a powerful liver pill, for there is something better to be had at no extra cost. Ask for a box of Ramon's Tonic Liver Pills (and Pellets). Simple but always effectual; two separate medicines, one to cleanse the liver and the other to purify the blood, build up the strength and the appetite. Ask your druggist about it and get a free trial dose of the pills.

HE MADE A CONFESSION.

Convincing Evidence from One of The Hewitt Howton Mob.

Princeton, Ky., Oct. 29.—James Witherspoon, Frank Thomas and Glenn Sully have been indicted for complicity in the mob that shot and killed Hewitt Howton last summer in this county. Thomas made a full confession to the grand jury Saturday evening, and the conviction of the parties is certain, as there is enough evidence to secure this result without Thomas' evidence. It is understood that other indictments have been found, but they are kept close. Most of those who participated in the mob have left the country, and the bad gang of which it was composed is believed to be broken up. The trial of the three parties named is set for today.

The Best Things Going.

The teachers of Crittenden county, met in an association at Tolu, Ky., Oct. 25, and after a warm welcome address by G. E. Young and a very good dinner and supper from Tolu's genial citizens, the teachers proceeded to interchange ideas about the profession.

With Prof. Wilcox as President, C. B. Hina as Vice, and an attentive audience all conceded it to be the best thing going.

Among the best features of the program was a paper by Miss Luna Clement, in which she proved that it is heresy to think that "any one can teach our little ones."

A recitation was well rendered by Miss Della Kevil, while C. Evans in his subject of Demagogue vs. Pedagogue was truly eloquent, showing that he knew the right side of his subject, and that he as usual, was prepared to entertain an appreciative audience.

It would not only benefit pedagogues to read or hear this address by Mr. Evans, but we believe the demagogues would grasp some of the "best things going."

We also had short discussions on various subjects by our Supt. and other teachers.

We feel much indebted to the people of Tolu, for their hospitality, and deeply sympathize with those teachers whose stay-at-home qualities will not permit them to get some of "the best things going."

Goode Escaped.

The Sturgis Ledger of Friday says: A United States deputy marshal, accompanied by an officer of this county, went to Missouri where they had located Wm. Goode, wanted in Crittenden county for house burning. They found their man where they expected and arrested him. He agreed to return with them without a requisition, and they started home. Everything went well until they arrived in Cairo, Ill., Wednesday morning. Here they were proceeding along the street Goode suddenly concluded to part company with his captors, and made a break. A lady passing along the street at the time and Goode ran past her and the officers were hindered from shooting at him till he turned a corner and disappeared. They instituted an immediate search, but their efforts to find their prisoner were in vain. They finally gave up the hunt and returned home Wednesday night.

A reward is offered for Goode's arrest and delivery to the authorities of this state and by his escape the officers had their trouble for their pains. However, it is only a matter of time till Goode will be landed behind the bars.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: 'I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results.' Trial bottles free at J. H. Orme & Bro. Drug Store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00. n20-2w.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed in the Spring, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine will not merely counteract and relieve the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. Only fifty cents per bottle at H. Orme & Bro. Drug Store. n20-2w.

Mr. J. T. Woolf was in town Monday. He has recently moved from Kelsey to Salem and embarked in the mill business, and he protests that he likes milling better than merchandising.

Mr. John P. Reed, the stock man, who travels over the county every day, reports that about one-fourth of the wheat is up, and that which is up is very sickly looking. He thinks the outlook for a good crop is anything but encouraging.

Five steamboats, it is said, are hovering around a small pool of water in the Ohio opposite R. N. Grady's. They can't get forward nor backward, and if the water continues to assuage they will soon be in the middle of a sandy desert.

Had you observed that cough and other indications of a severe cold that our postmaster is nursing? He got it at Barnett's lake last week. He and Jas. Gilbert went down to have some fun with the fish; the old boat sunk in twelve feet of cold water, and the fish had some fun with them.

Mr. J. D. O'Bannon, of Benton, with a number of assistance, arrived yesterday, for the purpose of canvassing the county for Browning's Scientific chum, mention of which has been made in this paper. This chum is said to be the best thing of the age in its line, and as it comes with the best endorsement, the people will do well to give it a fair trial.

Dr. J. V. Hayden, of Salem, was in town Monday. He reports that there are yet several cases of diphtheria in Salem and vicinity, and he is surprised that the disease has not made its appearance in Marion. Our people would be wise if they protect themselves against it, and the immunity is to be had along the lines recommended by the State Board of Health, as published in this paper last week.

Judge J. F. Dempsey, the Democrat nominee for Railroad Commissioner, was in town Monday. He met a good many people and they were well pleased with him, and he was likewise pleased with them and the hearty reception he received. Judge Dempsey is one of the best men in the State, and his splendid qualities and gentlemanly bearing, easily made us forgive him for defeating our Bob for the nomination.

W. B. Yandell's new residence has about reached completion and it is one of the handsomest in town. Not only is the outside beautiful and substantial but the finish of the interior is elegant. Such houses add materially to the good appearance of a town; and Mr. Yandell has shown a commendable spirit of enterprise in putting up such a house.

In removing the judges stand in the court house a few days ago the jailer found a letter under the stand; the first paragraph of the letter read as follows:

This the 24th day of April, 1871. Known by this that on that day this stand by which this little now is screened from the prying eyes of the world, was closed by the hands of J. W. McCaslin, J. H. Cradup, G. A. Martin and S. Heerick, the same four being the builders of this house.

The white-caps, or night rovers, or regulators, as they are variously termed, are, according to reports, still abroad in some portions of the county. Various persons have been called from their beds to find themselves confronted with bands varying in numbers from four to twenty persons, and given orders to deport themselves according to rules suggested by the nightly visitors. These affairs have been confined to a scope of country between Crittenden Springs and Hurricane. Saturday night a man in the neighborhood of Mr. A. Dean's was called up and out, and told that he must work harder, and that his wife, who had been assisting him in some field work, must not be permitted to do that character of work again. The man who was called out, first showed fight, and presented his pistol, but he was soon persuaded to forego any intentions of that kind. He finally agreed to do as directed, and the visitors left, promising to bother him no more, if he complied with orders.

For some years Mr. H. M. Cook has been worried with a large tumor on the back of his neck. Last week Dr. Clark removed it, and Mr. Cook is happy.

Mr. H. A. Haynes attended a meeting of the District Stewards of the Methodist churches of the Princeton district at Princeton Friday.

Miss Kittie Woods, who has been spending some months with relations at this place, will return to her home at Augusta, Ark., this week. She made many friends during her brief sojourn in Marion.

Fresh Fish every Saturday at Clement & Crider's.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed in the Spring, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the rest of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine will not more cure in counteracting and restoring the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. Only fifty cents per bottle at H. Orme & Bro. Drug Store.

Public Speaking.

The following appointments are announced for speaking at Marion: Hampton, Friday, Nov. 1, Carville, Saturday, Nov. 2, Speaking to begin at 1 p. m.

Everybody invited to come out and hear the issues of the day discussed.

Stray Notice.

About 3 months ago, a black steer, some white on belly and in face, put Jersey, marked crop off in right, and underbit in left ear, about 8 years old, strayed from me. Will pay for his return or for information that will lead to his recovery.

Stray Hog.

A white and black spotted barrow hog, weight about 140 pounds, marked swallow-fork in right, left, has been at my home for some time. Owner can have paying for this notice.

Mr. G. F. Jennings, the hustling contractor and builder, has just completed a pretty cottage residence for Sherman Franklin, of the Iron Hill neighborhood.

Goods are now being hauled from Marion to Carversville on wagons, a distance of 22 miles. Navigation on the Ohio has closed, and this is the best point for Carversville merchants to get their goods.

Wm. Coram came up from Carversville Tuesday after a wagon load of goods for the merchants of that place. He says everybody down there now is for a rail road and for it by all majorities.

There has been a number of conversions at the meeting at the C. P. church. Rev. Chappell is an eloquent logical preacher and the people have fallen in love with him.

Miss Nellie Butler, daughter of the late C. W. Butler, is very ill at the residence of her brother-in-law, Mr. Will Mayes, west of town. She has lung disease and her recovery is doubtful.

There was a public literary entertainment at the school house Friday night, and it was a pleasant affair. The pupils of the school are taking great interest in their work, and the first examination showed material progress.

If you want a hat or suit of clothes go to the Cheap Store to buy it.

Mr. J. T. Woolf was in town Monday. He has recently moved from Kelsey to Salem and embarked in the mill business, and he protests that he likes milling better than merchandising.

Mr. John P. Reed, the stock man, who travels over the county ever day, reports that about one-fourth of the wheat is up, and that which is up is very sickly looking. He thinks the outlook for a good crop is anything but encouraging.

Five steamboats, it is said, are hovering around a small pool of water in the Ohio opposite R. N. Grady's. They can't get forward nor backward, and if the water continues to assuage they will soon be in the middle of a sandy desert.

Had you observed that cough and other indications of a severe cold that our postmaster is nursing? He got it at Barnett's lake last week. He and Jas. Gilbert went down to have some fun with the fish; the old boat sunk in twelve feet of cold water, and the fish had some fun with them.

Mr. J. D. O'Bannon, of Benton, with a number of assistance, arrived yesterday, for the purpose of canvassing the county for Browning's Scientific chum, mention of which has been made in this paper. This chum is said to be the best thing of the age in its line, and as it comes with the best endorsement, the people will do well to give it a fair trial.

Dr. J. V. Hayden of Salem, was in town Monday. He reports that there are several cases of diphtheria in Salem and vicinity, and he is surprised that the disease has not made its appearance in Marion. Our people would be wise if they protect themselves against it, and the immunity is to be had along the lines recommended by the State Board of Health, as published in this paper last week.

Judge J. F. Dempsey, the Democrat nominee for Railroad Commissioner, was in town Monday. He met a good many people and they were well pleased with him, and he was likewise pleased with them and the hearty reception he received. Judge Dempsey is one of the best men in the State, and his splendid qualities and gentlemanly bearing, easily made us forgive him for defeating our Bob for the nomination.

W. B. Yandell's new residence has about reached completion and it is one of the handsomest in town. Not only is the outside beautiful and substantial but the finish of the interior is elegant. Such houses add materially to the good appearance of a town; and Mr. Yandell has shown a commendable spirit of enterprise in putting up such a house.

In removing the judges stand in the court-house a few days ago the jailer found a letter under the stand; the first paragraph of the letter read as follows:

"This the 24th day of April, 1871. Known by this that on that day this stand by which this little note is screened from the prying eyes of the world, was closed by the hands of J. W. McGladin, J. H. Crutcher, G. A. Martin and S. Heerick, the same four being the builders of this house.

The white caps, or night rovers, or regulators, as they are variously termed, are, according to reports, still abroad in some portions of the county. Various persons have been called from their beds to find themselves confronted with hands varying in number from four to twenty persons, and given orders to deport themselves according to rules suggested by the nightly visitors. These affairs have been confined to a scope of country between Crittenden Springs and Hurricane. Saturday night a man in the neighborhood of Mr. A. Dan's was called up and out, and told that he must work harder, and that his wife, who had been assisting him in some field work, must not be permitted to do that character of work again. The man who was called out, first showed fight, and presented his pistol, but he was soon persuaded to forego any intentions of that kind. He finally agreed to do as directed, and the visitors left, promising to bother him no more, if he complied with orders.

For some years Mr. H. M. Cook has been worried with a large tumor on the back of his neck. Last week Dr. Clark removed it, and Mr. Cook is happy.

Rev. R. Y. Thomas has contracted with Mr. G. F. Jennings for the building of a nice cottage residence, near J. G. Rochester's, northeast of town.

Hon. Crit. G. Hughes, of Bowling Green, is booked for some prohibition speeches in this county this week. He has an appointment at Marion Nov. 2, at 7 P. M.

The Morganfield Sun says: "They are only offering 18 cents for corn in Henderson county, and Mr. A. G. Crutcher, of Smith's Mills, bought 200 bushels a few days ago at 15 cents."

Hon. John K. Hendricks will speak at Salem, Monday Nov. 4. It will pay every man in the county to be at Salem that day and hear the congressman discuss the issues of the campaign.

One of the big cases in Quarterly court was on trial Tuesday. James Writtenbry sued Lewis O'Neal for $25.00 for killing a dog that belonged to the plaintiff. He got damages for $5.00.

Mr. Albert Weldon, one of the proprietors of the new mill at Tolu, was in town Monday. The mill is now running and doing fine work. The machinery is of the latest improved pattern and everything about it is first class.

M. Schwab is still building up his reputation as a hustler. Last week he shipped six cars of wheat and one of fruit; this week two of each. He bought in one day last week at Hampton and Salem 30,000 pounds of dried fruit.

Married at the Presbyterian church Carversville, Ky., Oct. 23, Prof. M. C. Wright and Miss Ella Barnes, Rev. Crandall officiating. Misses Cora Dollins and Grace Gurney; Messrs Albert Liken and Ernest Stallons attendants.

Some day, some time, some where, you will probably know what it is to have sick headache. Do not go to the drug store and take a powerful liver pill, for there is something better to be had at no extra cost. Ask for a box of Ramon's Tonic Liver Pills (and Pellets). Simple but always effective; two separate medicines, one to cleanse the liver and the other to purify the blood, build up the strength and the appetite. Ask your druggist about it and get a free trial dose of the pills.

HE MADE A CONFESSION.

Convincing Evidence from One of The Hewitt Howton Mob.

Princeton, Ky., Oct. 29.—James Witherspoon, Frank Thomas and Glenn Steffy have been indicted for complicity in the mob that shot and killed Hewitt Howton last summer in this county. Thomas made a full confession to the grand jury Saturday evening, and the conviction of the parties is certain, as there is enough evidence to secure this result without Thomas' evidence. It is understood that other indictments have been found, but they are kept close. Most of those who participated in the mob have left the country, and the bad gang of which it was composed is believed to be broken up. The trial of the three parties named is set for today.

The Best Things Going.

The teachers of Crittenden county, met in an association at Tolu, Ky., Oct. 25, and after a warm welcome address by G. E. Young and warmer dinner and supper from Tolu's genial citizens, the teachers proceeded to interchange ideas about the profession.

With Prof. Wilcox as President, C. B. Hines as Vice, and an attentive audience all conceded it to be the best thing going.

Among the best features of the program was a paper by Miss Lina Clement, in which she proved that it is heresy to think that "any one can teach our little ones."

A recitation was well rendered by Miss Della Kevil, while C. Evans in his subject of Demagogues vs. Pedagogues was truly eloquent, showing that he knew the right side of his subject, and that he was usual, was prepared to entertain an appreciative audience.

It would not only benefit pedagogues to read or hear this address by Mr. Evans, but we believe the demagogues would grasp some of the "best things going."

We also had short discussions on various subjects by our Supt. and other teachers.

We feel much indebted to the people of Tolu, for their hospitality, and deeply sympathize with those teachers whose stay-at-home qualities will not permit them to get some of "the best things going."

Alice Browning, Sec.

Goode Escaped.

The Sturgis Ledger of Friday says:

A United States deputy marshal, accompanied by an officer of this county, went to Missouri where they had located Wm. Goode, wanted in Crittenden county for house burning. They found their man where they expected and arrested him. He agreed to return with them without a requisition, and they started home. Everything went well until they arrived in Cairo, Ill., Wednesday morning. Here as they were proceeding along the street Goode suddenly concluded to part company with his captors, and made a break. A lady passing along the street at the time and Goode ran past her and the officers were hindered from shooting at him till he turned a corner and disappeared. They instituted an immediate search, but their efforts to find their prisoner were in vain. They finally gave up the hunt and returned home Wednesday night. A reward is offered for Goode's arrest and delivery to the authorities of this state and by his escape the officers had their trouble for their pains. However, it is only a matter of time till Goode will be

Born a Genius

Disease Threatens to Cut Short a Noble Career
But Hood's Sarsaparilla Restores Good Health.

Little May Bentley is an accomplished stenographer and natural born speaker of only 17 years of age. She is the only child of a family who, before the birth of her genius, however, did not exempt her from an attack of a disease of the blood. Her own words best tell the story:

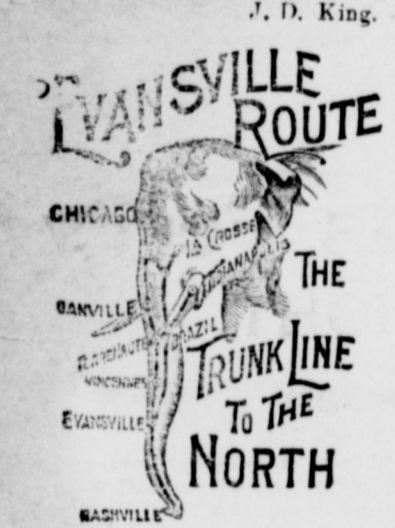

"I heartily join with the thousands that are recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla. I had been troubled from infancy with gutters in the head. I was compelled to leave school upon the doctor's advice. He thought it was the only thing to save my life."

Continued to Grow Worse.
I was persuaded finally by a friend to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. The use of one bottle acted as a tonic upon the blood and I began to improve. After the use of three bottles the gutters ceased and I am cured of my former trouble. I owe my life and will always remain a true friend to Hood's Sarsaparilla. Little May Bentley, Shelbyville, Indiana. Get Hood's Sarsaparilla at the drug store or by mail.

Hood's Pills act easily, yet promptly and efficiently, on the liver and bowels. See.

EXPECTANT MOTHERS.

"MOTHERS' FRIEND"

Robt. Conklin of his Pain, Horror and Risk.

AT 19 AND 27.

Esther Lindsay was 19 when her first story was published. It was not the first one she had written by any means. Ever since she had been able to form the alphabet her characters and join them together for the first time had been weaving all sorts of possible and impossible romances, many of which she had forwarded to publishers in various parts of the country, believing with all the fervor of her youthful egotism that her crude sentiments, still more crudely wrought, would inspire in some editor's soul the same faith in her greatness which she herself already possessed.

But somehow her contributions always fell short of the mark of excellence necessary to insure them a favorable consideration, and manuscript after manuscript was returned to her and was securely locked away in the lower drawer of her old fashioned bureau, which had been dedicated, with a good many tears of disappointment, as a repository for all rejected offerings at the shrine of literature. By the time she was 19 there were probably 100 or more of those hapless productions laid away either to be ignominiously forgotten or resurrected and revised when her mind should become sufficiently matured to sift out whatever meritorious material there might be in them and use it to good advantage.

She worked steadily for more than three months on her "Story of the Steamer Kendrick." One night she finished rewriting it for the twenty-first time, and the next day she sent it to Jesse Arnold, editor of the Inland Weekly, with a five line note asking him to read it carefully, and even if he could not use it to let her know what he thought of it.

Of all the editors in the land she seemed to have chosen him as her most favored target. Why she could not have told, for she had no personal acquaintance with him, and his letters accompanying returned manuscripts had been even more curt and forbidding than those of his brother publishers. But for all that each unhappily ending venture only added fuel to her zeal to secure a foothold among the ranks of the Inland Weekly's contributors, and compel its chief by sheer force of her importance to acknowledge her developed or potential ability.

Her "Story of the Steamer Kendrick" was not a work of genius, but there were phases of the plot that were strong and passages that were unusually well conceived and executed, and after reading it three times Jesse Arnold, who was a conscientious editor, decided to keep it. He accepted it with that feeling of uncertainty with which an insurance man issues a policy on an extra hazardous risk and congratulated himself on his shrewdness with equal delight when it turned out to be preferred. The public liked the story, and several critics who condescended to review The Inland Weekly praised it. Perhaps Editor Arnold himself was more fully aware of the glaring absurdities in the piece he had brought out than were any of its readers, and such favorable comment that came to his notice only made them all the more apparent. At last he concluded to write to his unknown literary protégée and warn her against certain errors which might be pardoned in a young author's first story, but which, if often repeated, would be a serious drawback to her advancement in her art.

Before he did so, however, she sent him another hastily written story and a letter which was a strange jumble of gratitude to him for bringing her before the public, thankfulness that she had been so well received and all sorts of expressions of a steadfast belief that she was fairly launched on a sea of success where wrecks and disasters were an impossibility. In conclusion she hinted that he ought to be eternally grateful to her for allowing him to print a story which would in all probability send his paper round the country as well as his own.

That evening he wrote the contemplated letter.

"You are in danger of being spoiled," he said in part. "You need advice, and I feel that I have the right to address you in the capacity of censor. Remember you are in an age to come world, and the literature that will live will be the very essence, the embodiment of that world. Visionary, idealistic sketches, such as yours, may make very good reading, but they are not the true stuff. You have unquestioned ability, but if you wish to succeed you must turn it to the portrayal of living men and women, not of imaginary puppets that you have manipulated for the most part in your 'Story of the Steamer Kendrick.' Take your hero, for instance. It may be quite comforting for a time to come in contact through the medium of printers' ink and paper with an Apollo, a mental Hercules, a spiritual god and a financial Czarus all combined in one American man, and a New Yorker at that, but I doubt if any of us would relish a closer acquaintance with him. He would be apt to prove unpalatable. Besides, he would be an exorcism on the human race, and after your second or third story the public would have none of him. So take warning. Make your hero a real man—full of imperfections if need be—and let the gods take care of themselves."

Esther Lindsay read and reread the editor's letter. He had not intended to make it unnecessarily pointed or critical, but of all the characters she had ever conjured up her last hero had been the object of her most sincere admiration, and the admonition to shun him and his ilk touched her in the most vulnerable spot.

I want that man to understand me," she said to her mother after having dreamed over the contents of the letter for a couple of nights.

am going down to Ironton and see him, for it would be utterly useless for me to attempt to explain in writing just what stand I have taken on this subject."

Her family knew her too well to remonstrate against the proposed visit, and the next morning she took the early train for Ironton. It was late in the afternoon when she reached the office of the Ironton Inland Weekly. Jesse Arnold was closing his door. She waited for him, and he stepped back into his paper he strewn and motioned to her to follow.

"I am Jesse Arnold," he said in that stiff way which he habitually adopted when addressing strangers. "What is it you wish to see me about?"

At his best the editor was not a good looking man, and that day when he stood between her and the window, where the full beams of the evening sun poured in and seemed to exaggerate every defect of his person, from the most upright end of his short, straight black hair to his disproportionately large feet, he was painfully conscious that his loosely knit body and his invariably complexion never appeared to worse advantage.

She took in the details of the room and the general make-up of its occupant with one comprehensive sweep of her clear, blue eyes and then said simply:

"I am Esther Lindsay. If it does not inconvenience you, I should like to talk to you a little while about this last letter you wrote me."

There was but a trace of his former reserve left, and he took her hand impulsively.

"I am glad to see you," he said, with a smile. The best part of Jesse Arnold was his smile. "Are you willing to let me be your doctor and take my prescriptions faithfully?"

"No," she said, flushing slightly under his close scrutiny. "I don't think I am. I don't think I can. You don't understand," she went on earnestly, encouraged by his look of friendly interest.

"I don't suppose there are any men that are absolutely perfect, but I have my ideal of what a man should be, and I put him body and soul into my 'Story of the Steamer Kendrick.' I don't think that I am overoptimistic when I say that I believe with all my heart that such men live and that you and I have met them and can point them out."

He shook his head in quiet controversy of her theory. She waited a moment for him to speak, then exclaimed impatiently:

"Well, why don't you say something?"

"Because," he answered, leaning far back in his creaking chair and clasping his hands behind his head, "I see quite plainly that whatever argument I may present it will only antagonize you. You may know such men as you depict. I do not, and my experience has been infinitely more varied than yours. I know you will not heed me, but I repeat that it will not get us any further in a world peopled only by ideals. You must associate with the real. Take some man of your acquaintance; study him. Take his nature for your model, and you will be on the right track."

"You have one view, and though it may be right I feel as though I might be giving up the best part of myself to sacrifice my opinion to yours," she said, with that touch of wisdom she had lately assumed. "But I suppose," she continued, "that if my stories are up to the standard you will not decline them on account of that one technicality?"

He smiled again. "No," he said, "not on that account."

To have one article printed, even though it be in the Ironton Inland Weekly, does not give unquestioned entrance into the columns of every other periodical in the country, and for many months after the appearance of her first story Esther Lindsay plodded wearily over her literary way, which was an uphill, slippery path. A score of unfortunate tales were added to the unpublished library in the bureau drawer before she found an outlet for her ideas a second time. Then followed five years of ups and downs. No literary aspirant ever had a more jealous guardian that she had in Jesse Arnold. He exulted in every victory she achieved and deplored every defeat she met as keenly as though it had been his own, and then one day when some unexpected turn of ill luck made her despair of trying to push on further in the course she had mapped out for herself he capped the climax of his sympathy and interest by asking her to marry him.

It was a surprise to her, and she promptly refused him.

"I never expected this from you," she said, trying to temper her dismissal with a kind of an apology, "you, who knew me so well. You may call me a dreamer, an idiot, if you like, but I have my ideal still, and unless I find him in real life I shall never marry."

Prof. Chas. Evans is in town, getting acquainted with his future patrons and looking after other details of the school. He is deeply interested in his work and if the people of Marion will give him the hearty cooperation he deserves, Marion will have a better school than she ever had before.

THE NEW DEAL.

COURT HOUSE MATTERS.

Monday was a busy day about the court house. It was the day for the new officers to take charge of the ship of county and start her out for another year.

The first officer to take a fresh start was the present popular and efficient Sheriff. He appeared in the county clerk's office early in the day and filed a new bond, with A. J. Pickens, J. W. Guess, H. A. Haynes and W. J. Deboe as sureties.

The Justices of the Peace came in from their respective bailiwicks at different hours, and one by one presented themselves and their bonds at the county clerk's office and were duly inducted into office by the affable man at the helm.

First came the tall hickory from Livingston creek, J. W. Mabry, and with Messrs. J. E. and J. B. Stephenson and Eld. W. R. Gibbs as sureties he was made a Justice and given the power to solemnize the rites of matrimony. His regular courts will be held on the second Thursday of March, June, September and December, and the residents of Dycusburg district may expect an earnest, faithful discharge of duty.

Next came W. E. Condit, who physically might be called the Zacheus of the Ford's Ferry district. He is a square, safe, sound, energetic man, and those who commit infraction upon the law, when taken before him, will get justice just as speedily, amply and firmly as if Squire Condit was as tall as the Dycusburg hickory. He has the right to solemnize the rite of matrimony, and will attend to business of this kind as soon as he can commit to memory an appropriate ceremony; his regular hours of court will be held the fourth Tuesdays of the months herein before mentioned. His bondsmen are Zach Terry.

Next came Mr. P. C. Moore, of Hurricane. His bondsmen are B. Marick, J. W. McConnell, G. C. W. then, T. J. Hamilton and A. J. E. B. B. He will wear the honors gracefully but eschews any intention of tying connubial knots. He is a clever man and will do his duty. His courts will be held the third Fridays.

Next came the red elm from Claylick, T. A. Harpending; he is an old hand at the business and is thoroughly conversant with county affairs and statutory law. Henry Brouster, who is reading law under the tutelage of the Squire, is the bondsman. Harpending is the Nestor of the entire block. He is a good man and will continue to do good service; he ties connubial knots to order.

After this the heavy weight from Butler creek, with Peter Shewmaker and Billy Crow backing him, came in and put on the toga of office. We mean John Postlethwait. Job will keep Marion No. 1 in order and do the thing right, too. He is a plain, honest, sensible man, and nothing can serve him from duty. He will hold court on the first Fridays of the before named months.

G. F. Williams will do the magisterial honors for Piney. His bondsmen are R. H. Kemp, J. A. Kemp, P. H. Deboe; he has been a Squire and a good one too, for the past two years. He is the most cheerful member of the board, and can laugh at a fellow while he fines him for any depredation. He has too much other business to fool away time in tying people together for life.

The last to be sworn in was John N. Culley, and he is the handsomest of the lot. He lives near the sparkling waters of the classic Trade-water, and has drawn from nature's store, house that which makes vigorous manhood. His bondsmen are E. M. Lindley, F. L. Black and Thos. J. Black. The office is no new thing to him and justice need fear no harm while in his keeping. His court days are the fourth Wednesdays of the magisterial months. His office is open at all hours for hearts and hands that want to be united in matrimony.

The new Jailor, Mr. Ayers Hard, took charge of an empty jail, and the men who guarantee that he will do all things according to law are J. J. Bennett and J. W. Mabry. His first work was putting the court room in shape for the board of tax supervisors. He was as gay as a lark (not his brother "Lark") all day long and went in early at night. Very soon he is going to post a notice at the court house gate, warning the cows and hogs hogs (the four footed ones) to keep off the grass.

N. J. Perrigan became Coroner, and his bondsmen are S. F. Snider, G. W. Corn, A. F. Franklin and J. H. Cornel. While Squire Condit is not a giant he could lick salt off the top of Perrigan's head, that is, if the latter would stand still along the side of a block. Newt is little, but he is clever, and will perform all the functions of this office as promptly as could be desired.

County Clerk Woods arranged to do business at the old stand for three years more. His bondsmen are H. K. Woods and R. W. Wilson. Dave has grown old in the service, and by the time he retires he will probably have worn his right arm away writing and will be entitled to a pension from the fiscal court.

County Judge Moore was re-consecrated, circuit clerk Haynes officiating as high priest. His bondsmen are J. W. Guess, G. Carter, B. W. Belt, and W. B. Vandell. He seems to be a part and parcel of the court house, and along with Dave Woods had as well be installed permanently. He is a good official, pleasant and patient.

R. H. Thomas was the only constable to qualify, and while he was putting on the fear of office for Hurricane, Felix Tyner kicked out of the traces for Union, and so the average of one constable for the county is maintained.

The Board of Tax Supervisors—Messrs. J. A. Davidson, W. R. Gibbs, B. W. Belt, W. J. LaRue and R. H. Kemp—began a work in the afternoon, and if they do not raise a racket over the county it will be because they don't want to. They have their hands on a very tender part of the body politic; if they pinch, there will be some squalling. Let us hope they will find no occasion for pinching.

As the seal turned to leave the court house he met Sheriff Frank with a copy of the Press in one hand and that solid index finger of the other hand pointing to these ominous letters: "She'll be Safe." "See that," said the officer. "I am bound to collect taxes, and unless the boys come in and come at once, I am going to fill a whole column in your paper."

W. C. M. Travis is the only county officer who is not required to give bond; he was sworn in Monday. He will move to town in the course of a few weeks. Physically he is not a Titan, but mentally he sizes up all right. While he will earn bread by prosecuting the evil doer in the week days, he will on Sunday urge the wicked to forsake his ways and give the courts less work to do.

J. F. Flannery, the new Assessor, has long since been photographed upon the minds of the people of Crittenden. His bondsmen are W. J. LaRue and W. H. Mayes. He is not the largest man in the county nor the smallest, but he is as bald as any of them, though he is not an old man. He has never married yet, hence the presence of that naked place on his head has never been satisfactorily explained. Notwithstanding all this, Della is a capital fellow and is going to make a good officer.

County Clerk Woods arranged to do business at the old stand for three years more. His bondsmen are H. K. Woods and R. W. Wilson. Dave has grown old in the service, and by the time he retires he will probably have worn his right arm away writing and will be entitled to a pension from the fiscal court.

Last week after Crossland Miles' trial for disturbing worship at the opera house, he had a warrant issued for Mr. John D. Boaz, charging him with disorderly conduct. The case was called before Police Judge Skelton; Mr. Boaz swore Skelton off of the bench, and Judge Pierce was called to preside, he being Chairman of the Board of Trustees. After hearing a portion of the testimony, town attorney Flannery dismissed the case.

Mr. E. W. Brantley died at his home in the eastern portion of the county Thursday night of last week. He was one of the substantial citizens of the county, and a member of one of the oldest and most respected families of this section.

SUNDAY NOT THE SABBATH.

So Preaches Eld. Reed, the Adventist, at the Opera House.

Eld. Reed, the Seventh Day Adventist, is still holding services at the opera house. His church holds that Sunday is not the Sabbath. The following is a synopsis of his sermon on "The subject."

The first day is mentioned in the New Testament just eight times. Let us read the eight texts and see if there is any indication that it is a holy day.

In Matt. 28:1 we read: "In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulcher." This text clearly proves that the first day follows the Sabbath.

In Mark 16:1, 2, we find the next mention of it: "And when the Sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, had bought sweet spices, that they might come and anoint him. And very early in the morning, the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulcher at the rising of the sun." From this text we learn that it is impossible to get up early enough on the morning of the first day of the week to keep the Sabbath, for these women arose very early and came to the tomb at the rising of the sun, but the Sabbath was past. Mark, then, agrees with Matthew in the fact that the first day follows the Sabbath.

Once more this writer mentions the first day, and then rests the matter. In the ninth verse of this sixteenth chapter he says: "Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils." In this text a simple mention is made of the day, and the fact that on that day Christ arose from the dead.

We now proceed to the testimony of Luke. In chapter 24:1 we find the following language: "Now upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning, they came unto the sepulcher, bringing the spices which they had prepared, and certain others with them. By reading a few of the preceding verses you will see that the women here spoken of came upon the first day of the week to do a work which they would not do on the Sabbath day, which had just passed. We see no indication of sacredness here but the contrary.

John makes mention of the first day twice in the twentieth chapter of his gospel. In verse 1 he simply states that the women visited the tomb of Christ on that day. "The first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark, unto the sepulcher, and seeth the stone taken away from the sepulcher." In the nineteenth verse he tells us that Jesus appeared to his disciples on the evening of the day of his resurrection. "Then the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came Jesus and stood in the midst, and saith unto them, Peace unto you."

In Acts 20:1 is mentioned an account of Paul preaching on the first day of the week. It reads as follows: "And upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow; and continued his speech until midnight." This meeting occurred on what we now call Saturday night after dark, the first day beginning that night at sunset. On Sunday morning Paul started to walk twenty miles across the isthmus to meet the remainder of the company with ship at Achaia. So that both Paul and his companions commenced their journey on the first day of the week, a circumstance which does not indicate that they regard it as a holy day.

Another, and the last in the New Testament which speaks of the first day is found in I Cor. 16:1, 2: "Now concerning the collection for the saints, as I have given order to the churches of Galatia, even so do ye. Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by you in store, as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come." This command concerning a collection for the saints when carried out will make the first day a working day. So it always has been to man and will never be anything else. Therefore, Sunday is not the Sabbath, never has been and never can be, for this the Lord could not do himself. Proof of this last statement was given on the blackboard, but lack of space will not permit its insertion here.

The well known attorney, J. G. Rochester, and Mr. John Pierce, a bright young lawyer from Livingston county, have formed a partnership for the practice of law at this place. Both are good lawyers and splendid citizens.

Fulton Heard from Again.

Yesterday a check came into the bank for payment, and the man who drew it was J. L. Fulton, the self same scamp who attempted to get Weldon's mules. The check was given to L. A. Baucum for $29.50 for "board of men and horses," and was signed "M. E. Baorgman by J. L. Fulton." It was endorsed by Baucum, and comes from the Bank of Henderson, Tenn., and bears date of December 24. Of course, Marion Bank did not pay it; Fulton has not and never had any money at the bank. The check is drawn up in good style, and is numbered "34." It was evidently given while Fulton was driving Weldon's team.

Miss Georgie McGrew, of Livingston county, is in town to make arrangements with the trustees to take charge of the drawing and art department of the school. She comes highly recommended, and will doubtless prove a valuable acquisition to the school.

Teeth Extracted Without Pain.

Dr. M. D. Halsey is at Marion Hotel and will remain until Sunday night. His success in extracting teeth without pain to the patient is attested by the scores who have had him do work in Marion. There is no question about the entire satisfaction of his work, and the method is absolutely harmless. If you have teeth that should be pulled, take advantage of this opportunity to have it done without the terrible pain you have been dreading so long. This will be the doctor's last visit to Marion.

Carlton Cornwell, foreman of the Gazette, Middletown, N. J., believes that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best remedy for colds and coughs. He used it for a cold and it effected a speedy cure. He says: "It is indeed a remedy, I can recommend it to all. I have also seen it used for whooping cough with the best results." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Dr. J. H. Orme.

The New Year

Finds Hood's Sarsaparilla leading in three important particulars, namely: Hood's Sarsaparilla has

1. The largest sale in the world. It accomplishes
2. The greatest cures in the world. It has
3. The largest Laboratory in the world.

What more can be said? Hood's Sarsaparilla has merit: is peculiar to itself, and most of all, Hood's Sarsaparilla cures. If you are sick, it is the medicine for you to take.

Stray Notice.

There is good reason for the popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Davis & Buzard, of West Monterey, Clarion co., Pa., say: "It has cured people that our physicians could do nothing for. We persuaded them to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and they now recommend it with the balance of us." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by J. H. Orme.

Commissioner's Notice.

To Claimants.
All persons having claims against the estate of Daniel Stone, deceased, are directed by order of the Crittenden circuit court to file the same, properly proven, with me on or before the 1st day of March, 1895; and all persons failing to file such claims on or before that date shall be barred from the collection of their said claims.
